Today

Please, Mr. Capone And Mr. Capone Pleases Who Can Follow a Pigeon Mr. Gifford's Big Job

By Arthur Brisbane

ELKHART, Ind., Aug. 27—Chicago, a few miles to the west of this fast Century train, was still interested this morning in the kidnaping of John J. Lynch, described as "a wealthy turfman." His business is supplying race track information to gamblers. The kidnapers demand $250,000 for his return. If the money is not paid, they will kill him, with no charge for that.

(Editor's note: Since the above dispatch was written, Lynch has been released by his kidnapers, and claims he was not forced to pay a ransom.)

"Won't you please bring back Mr. Lynch? You could do it, our police cannot."

Out speaks the great heart of Capone, harboring no resentment, although he is under federal indictment and on his way to jail.

"A kidnaper is no better than a rat, and I do not approve his racket because it makes the kidnaped man's wife and kiddies worry so much. I shall be glad to help Chicago in this emergency if I can."

That's as though Rockefeller had said:

"I shall be glad to lend you five dollars, if I can raise the money."

Police predict that Mr. Lynch will be returned to wife, and to kiddies, if there are any, within 24 hours, perhaps before you see this, and they think his ransom will be reduced to $50,000 from $250,000. Nothing more touching since the King of Spain released Duguesclin, without any ransom at all.

Chicago might revise the statement of the "I will" lady, changing her motto to read:

"I will, with the kind permission of Mr. Capone."

On Long Island, far off to the East, a father, obeying orders, found a carrier pigeon at a certain spot, fastened large bills to the bird and released it, hoping for the return of his kidnaped 16-year-old son.

That ingenious plan will interest the heads of our new crime industry. A pigeon cannot talk, cannot walk home, with detectives following, cannot be followed through the air.

Imagine the gratification of some "unemployed" that might shoot the pigeon, and find the $500 bills attached.

The good bishop of olden days that dropped his jewel-studded gold cross overboard, in the middle of the sea, and had it handed to him politely by a large crab as he stepped ashore, could not be more pleasantly surprised.

Mussolini announces a program of winter work for the idle that will cost $45,000,000 and employ 100,000 men.

A talk with Mussolini might interest President Hoover and Walter S. Gifford, in charge of our problem, more than many talks with the advisory committee of sixty.

And this is said with the greatest respect for the ability of the President and Mr. Gifford and the committee. Mussolini has personally handled a nation's problems and its population, sweeping aside all other authority for years, and he possesses unique experience.

It should be understood that Mr. Gifford is chosen by the President to attend alone to the unemployment problem and that full authority, as far as the President can give it, is in Mr. Gifford's hands.

The committee of sixty, comprising the ablest executives in America, is purely an advisory committee. There will be no divided authority. This is emphasized, because a paragraph recently published here might give a contrary impression.

The serious news is across the ocean in England, where the proud British have come to rely upon the text:

"I have been young, and now am old, yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread."

Think of the Bank of England drained of its gold by the Bank of France, and the empire that could borrow endless millions sterling under two per cent a year, worried about a trifling deficit of $600,000,000. In the roaring nineteeh twenty-nines, this country would have lent that amount to Liberia, or Kamchatka.

The world admires MacDonald's spirit, giving up power and party for the sake of his country. No one that has seen and heard him is surprised. He is a noble man, in a sense higher than Debrett's definition.

If the Labor party that he has created now rejects him, it will confirm the opinion of our "best American minds" that "any group of men with enough

GIRL PICKS MANNING IN LINEUP

A warrant charging William Manning, 30, of Newman st., South Boston, with the robbery and murder of Alexander Baxter, 70-year-old Roxbury storekeeper, will be asked in municipal court tomorrow, Deputy Police Supt. McDevitt announced this afternoon.

His announcement followed a dramatic visit to police headquarters by Hedda Christensen, 18, of Darling st., Roxbury, and other witnesses, to view Manning and other suspects.

The girl, trembling visibly and struggling to control her nerves which were shaken by her tragic experience of seeing the aged man shot to death, stared long and steadily at Manning.

"That man has me in doubt; he is about the size and had a grey hat," she said, but could not make a more positive identification.

Three other witnesses, failing to make positive identification, said the suspect the girl named somewhat resembled the tall man who figured in the crime.

Manning was arrested last night with two other men and a girl after a wild pursuit through Roxbury streets.

PICKS CROWLEY'S SON

As he was placed in the lineup at headquarters, Manning said to Inspector James Claffin:

"I'd like to have another tall man in the line."

Claflin invited him to select any man in the room in civilian clothes, and Manning picked Arthur Crowley, son of Supt. Michael H. Crowley, who promptly joined the lineup.

AUTO DEALER IS HELD IN THEFT

Earl O. Maxwell, 49, Waltham auto dealer of Adams st., and former president of the Waltham Chamber of Commerce, was arrested today charged with larceny from the Waltham National Bank.

The complainant was Francis M. Sears, president of the bank, the warrant charging larceny aggregating $1300 in three counts.

Maxwell was later arraigned in Waltham court before Judge F. P. Cunniff, pleaded not guilty and was held in $3000 for a hearing September 10.

Bonds were furnished by Fred E. Burke of the Waltham board of assessors.

According to the police, Maxwell has been in financial difficulties and his auto agency was closed last week.

He is charged with larceniet from the bank by means of auto notes on Jan. 3 and 7 last and May 4. Police charge he sold cars on notes handled by the bank, and that he made out several sets of notes on the same machine.

Kingston Brothers Must Go to Prison

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 27 (INS)—Frederick E. Kingston and his brother Harold, both of New Haven, must go to prison today to start service of terms imposed last May when they were found guilty of stock fraud charges. They had offices in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York.

Judge Francis P. McAvoy, of Waterbury, who sentenced the men, today granted a motion of State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn to vacate the stay of execution of the sentence.

Broken Neck Kills Swarthmore Star

Camden, N. J., Aug. 27 (AP)—Alfred Tommasetti, 23, quarterback on the Swarthmore College football team, died today from a broken neck received in a fall late yesterday at the Camden County Park swimming pool, where he was a life guard.

RICH WOMAN MISSING IN CAMBRIDGE

Mrs. Katherine C. Comey Mysteriously Vanishes From Home During Night

Mrs. Kate C. Comey, 70, wife of Prof. Arthur Messenger Comey, wealthy retired chemist, formerly of the Harvard faculty and later with the DuPonts, mysteriously disappeared from their home at 380 Mt. Auburn st., Cambridge, last night, it was reported to the police today.

According to her husband, who learned of the disappearance on arising this morning, the mystery was intensified by the discovery Mrs. Comey had left behind every article of clothing she owned.

A squad of Cambridge policemen searched the grounds of the Comey estate, several acres in extent, without success, while a metropolitan officer in a launch toured the shore of the Charles River nearby. The river was to be dragged later.

MYSTERY IN CASE

Prof. Comey, who told police he was absolutely at a loss to account for his wife's disappearance, said he would engage private detectives to hunt for her.

He said that on going down for breakfast he was informed by a servant that Mrs. Comey had not yet returned. Investigation, he said, revealed her room to be empty, although the bed had been slept in.

To add to the professor's bewilderment, he said, all his wife's clothing was hanging in wardrobes and closets, including a night dress which she had apparently donned when retiring.

Prof. Comey said he questioned the servants, and was told none had heard anyone leaving the house during the night. They were unable to throw any light on the disappearance, he said. Mrs. Comey was in good health and spirits when she retired last night, according to her husband.

SEARCH IS STARTED

He notified the Harvard sq., police station, and a squad of officers under Sergt. Bernard J. McCaffrey began search for the missing woman.

Prof. Comey, formerly a member of the Harvard faculty, retired a short time ago. Before coming to Cambridge he was chief chemist for the DuPonts at Wilmington, Del.

With his wife he made his home at the Mt. Auburn st. place, having recently purchased an adjoining estate and added it to his property.

Missing Banker's Body on Tracks

Hamilton, O., Aug. 27 (AP)—The body of William L. Schaeffer, 56, missing banker of Seven Mile, near here, was found today on the railroad tracks between Seven Mile and Hamilton.

Schaeffer disappeared from his home last Monday. Relatives said he usually carried a large sum of money with him and that he might have been robbed and slain.

DO-X LANDS 72 IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Conquering at last its 10 months battle against fire and wave and wind, the gigantic flying boat DO-X arrived by roundabout course from Germany today with 72 persons aboard. Its 12 great American engines thundering low above the narrows—the Atlantic steamers' gateway to New York—the DO-X at 11:15 (E. D. S. T.) scudded through grey skies past the Statue of Liberty.

The engines' roar mingled with screaming sirens of ferry boats and other harbor craft and with the cheers from thousands gathered at the Battery.

Among official welcomers were Capt. W. R. Sayles, chief of staff at the Navy Yard; Commander G. W. Simpson, U. S. N.; George F. Mand, heading the mayor's committee; Victor Ridder, representing German societies, and E. J. Snow, representing an oil company, with medals for the fliers.

Altenrhein, Switzerland, Aug. 27 (AP)—The DO-X II, sister ship of the big seaplane due at New York today, was tuned up this morning for a flight across the Alps to Italy.

Convicts Shoot Up Jail; 4 Commit Suicide

Marquette, Mich., Aug. 27 (AP)—Three prisoners, who were foiled in an attempted break from Marquette branch prison here today after they had shot a prison doctor dead and wounded a guard and a trusty, committed suicide after they had barricaded themselves in the industrial building of the prison.

A fourth convict later ended his life after he had shot at a guard and missed.

The convicts were Tony Germano, Toledo, sentenced to 25 to 50 years for killing a patrolman; Leo Duver, Charles Rosbury and Frank Hohfer, Germano and Hohfer were at one time charged with alliance with the Laman-Andrews kidnaping gang of Detroit.

Germano, Duver and Rosbury ended their lives after they had barricaded themselves in the industrial building of the prison with a score of guards surrounding them.

Hohfer shot himself half an hour later after he had fired at a guard in another wing of the prison and missed.

The slain doctor was A. W. Hornbogen. He was killed in the hospital, near the main gate of the prison, as three of the convicts attempted to make a break for freedom.

Frank Oligschlager, a prison trusty, was wounded by one of the convicts, and physicians said he had little chance to recover. He was an attendant in the hospital. Joe Cowling, assistant deputy war-

Convoyed by a fishing boat, he scudded across one of the nastiest bits of water in the world, coming ashore at Shakespeare Beach at 4:30 p. m.

He had a bad time all the way and partook of no food because he was afraid of seasickness.

He staggered ashore greatly weakened by his ordeal and the first thing he asked for was a glass of water.

DEATH LAW FOR IRISH TREASON

Dublin, Aug. 27 (INS)—Establishment of a tribunal with power to inflict capital punishment for treason, involving the abolition of trial by jury in such cases, is being sought here in an effort to rid the Irish Free State of terrorism by gunmen.

The proposals are to be embodied in a new police bill to be introduced by the Free State Government when the Dail reassembles in October.

George M. Harrigan of the Lowell Trust Had Money in Bag, Boston Bound

In the old-time road-agents' boldest style, a climax to a recent outburst of banditry in and around Boston, two masked and armed bandits today shot off a tire of a Lowell bank president's sedan in Woburn, seized a satchel containing $25,000, and fled in an automobile toward Boston.

Radio flashes were sent out to their cruising cars by State troopers from Reading barracks, but because police in Boston are not equipped with radio, word had to be sent here by telephone and teletype.

The bank president, George M. Harrigan, head of the Lowell Trust Co., was riding in Woodworth road, the main road that skirts Billerica between Lowell and Boston, when a gray sedan, which had been following closed upand two shots were fired.

A rear tire of the big car carrying the bank president and driven by his chauffeur, was exploded by the bandits' bullets as the gray sedan crowded up beside it.

LABORITES READ MACDONALD OUT OF PARTY

NEW NATIONAL GOVERNMENT REPUDIATED

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Correspondent

London, Aug. 27—A bitter attack upon the economy plans of the National Coalition government was launched by the Trades Union Council and the consultative committee of the Labor party in a joint manifesto issued this afternoon.

"The Labor movement repudiates the government which is determined to attack the standard of living of workers in order to meet a situation caused by the policies of the private banking interests, who have decided that this country is setting a bad example by taking the rich to provide necessities for the poor," the manifesto declared.

"The government could overcome the immediate difficulty by mobilizing the country's foreign investments, by suspension of the sinking fund and by taxing fixed interest securities, as well as other measures affecting unearned income to reduce the burden of debt."

STIMSON A VISITOR

U. S. Secretary of State Stimson was a visitor at 10 Downing st. early today and had breakfast with Premier MacDonald.

The visit caused considerable comment for Stimson is the first visitor from abroad to be received by the premier since the fall of the Labor government and it is believed that relations of Britain and America must have been a subject of discussion at the meeting of the two.

SON BACKS PREMIER

Malcolm MacDonald, M. P., son of the prime minister, announced he would support the Cabinet. Oliver Baldwin, M. P., son of Stanley Baldwin, former conservative premier who is in the new cabinet, announced his opposition. Oliver Baldwin is a staunch socialist.

The two sons of Arthur Henderson, former foreign secretary who now heads the laborite opposition, declared they would "stick with father."

ability to run an empire would not be in a Labor party, because they would not need to labor."

Senator Lewis of Illinois sees a danger. Russia is making nonaggressive pacts with Poland, France and other countries, getting ready to attack us, and take back Alaska.

Why not take New York, which still contains much money, or Washington, with its five billions of real gold?

Russia will attack us to make us recognize her, according to Senator Lewis, and we ought to be prepared.

We certainly ought to be prepared. We got Alaska from Russia at a bargain, such a bargain as might well make us forget the few millions that Russia owes our bankers.

But Russia is not going so far back for a pretext.

If she wants to fight us, which she does not, being intelligently managed, she will fight and be done with it. For war, you need little excuse.

Why was the last war fought? Because an obscure fanatic killed an Austrian prince of no consequence, and then twenty millions were killed and two hundred and fifty billions spent.

FRELINGHUYSEN GAVE $10,000 TO BISHOP

Jersey Senator's Donation Reveals Anti-Smith Fund Reached $75,300

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—A contribution of $10,000 to Bishop James Cannon, Jr., when he was chairman of anti-Smith committee in Virginia in 1928 by Joseph J. Frelinghuysen, former Republican Senator from New Jersey, was found today by the Senate Campaign Fund Committee investigation.

F. C. Ferguson, president of the Hudson County National Bank of New Jersey, identified two cashiers' checks for $5000 each drawn on his bank October 24, 1928, and made payable to Bishop Cannon.

TOTAL NOW $75,300

Ferguson said "Senator Frelinghuysen" was the purchaser of the two checks. He then identified Frelinghuysen as Joseph S. Frelinghuysen.

This brings the known total of contributions to Cannon in the 1928 campaign to $75,300, of which $65,-300 was given by E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist.

Ferguson said he had no conversation with Frelinghuysen regarding the checks at the time they were purchased, but that he talked with him at the time the Nye committee was seeking information about them.

SIGNED BY CANNON.

Frelinghuysen had no objection to his giving the information to the committee, Ferguson said.

The cashier's checks were endorsed, Senator Nye said, by Bishop Cannon and stamped by the Continental Trust Co. of Washington, where the bishop maintained an account during the 1928 campaign known as "Bishop James Cannon, Jr., chairman."

telegraph pole, the chauffeur halted—and then the two youths, each about 20 to 22 years old, leaped out of their car.

Each man wore a handkerchief over his face, from the eyes down, and each held a revolver.

While one man held the bank president and his chauffeur covered, the other seized the satchel containing the $25,000 and consigned to the First National Bank of Boston as a payroll.

The nthe man with the satchel leaped back into the gray Buick and cried:

"Come on."

The second bandit then jumped back into the sedan which sped away toward Boston.

President Harrigan and his chauffeur changed the punctured tire and then drove to Woburn police headquarters, where the holdup was reported.

Police Chief Charles R. McCauley immediately telephone the state patrol barracks at Reading and Boston police headquarters, declaring he believed the men to be Boston bandits.

State troopers put a description of the car and the two bandits on the air immediately, and the short-wave broadcast was picked upp by cruising cars within a 20-mile radius.

RADIO COVERS STATE

From Framingham barracks, the descriptions were broadcast in a further 20-mile area, covering beyond Marlboro, and state troopers' barracks re-broadcast all along the line to cover the entire state.

Mr. Harrigan told police his car had been trailed for miles over the road until it got into the wooded section on the Woburn side of the Burlington-Woburn line.

He thought nothing of the auto immediately behind him, however, until the two shots rang out and the right rear tire banged and wobbled, and the chauffeur, fearing a collision with the telegraph pole, as he was crowded to the side of the road, pulled up and stopped.

"It might have been our lives," said President Harrigan as he described the holdup to Woburn police.

KNEW HIS HABITS.

Mr. Harrigan, who has been in the habit of making periodical trips to Boston with large sums of money for deposit in Boston banks, said he believed the bandits had learned of his business habits and had waited until today to spring their coup.

He told police that both men wore trench coats, had handkerchiefs over their faces, had on dark trousers, light caps and black shoes. He said he was not certain, but that he believed one man held a revolver while the other had an automatic pistol.

Mr. Harrigan told Chief McCauley:

"The first I knew of the holdup was when I heard the shots fired. Then the car flashed up to us and crowded us to the side of the road.

"The two men waved guns at us and jumped out of the car, and one went on each side of our car. While one pointed a gun at me the other covered my chauffeur and demanded the bag with the money.

OVER IN FEW SECONDS

"They seemed to be confused, but then the man with me said, 'Here's the bag' and he seized it up.

"It took only a few seconds, and I got only a fleeting glimpse of their car. It was a gray Buick sedan. That's about the only description I can give of it."

The chauffeur, when asked to describe the bandit car, said it was a gray Buick, but he could give no numbers other than to state that he believed the license plate carried two sevens.

According to Chief McCauley, while Woburn police were flashing the holdup alarm over the telephone and teletype, Mr. Harrigan and his chauffeur walked out of the police station, and a subsequent search of several places in Lowell and Boston failed to disclose either.

Woburn police admitted that they had not had time to take the name of the chauffeur.

DETECTIVES ON JOB.

State Detectives Edward J. Sherlock and Edward O'Neill were assigned from the office of Dist. Atty. Warren Bishop, but their attempts to learn more about the holdup were handicapped by their inability to find Mr. Harrigan and his chauffeur.

According to Chief McCauley, the first man to report the crime was Samuel Smith of Parkway drive, Brookline, who said he witnessed the holdup while driving past.

Within a few miles and telephoned Reading barracks of the State police, from where the word was flashed to Woburn police. Smith said that he then went back to the scene, where the chauffeur was shifting the shot-punctured tire.

According to Chief McCauley, Harrigan said that after the shooting he walked down the road and telephoned his insurance company. Then he went back to the car and waited for the tire change, after which he was driven to Woburn police headquarters.

"FLAME" AND MAN IN COURT

Hull was arrested today in front of the General Fabrics Mills on Mill st., where the strike riots took place.

In district court, Judge Roscoe M. Dexter asked Hull if he could furnish $500 bail for hearing Sept. 4.

"We can get bail, Judge," said Miss Burlak.

Miss Burlak returned to Pulaski Hall, Mill st., and addressed a crowd of about 100 strikers, urging that the General Fabrics mill be picketed.

Bandits Get $14,000 in Nova Scotia Bank

Halifax N. S., Aug. 27 (AP)—Two masked men walked into the Quinpool rd. branch of the Royal Bank of Canada shortly after the branch opened for business today, slugged Manager Frank O. Roberts son over the head with a gun, herded four employes into the vault, and escaped with $14,000.

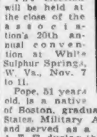
Polish Beauty May Beat Law by Marrying

Santa Ana, Cal., Aug. 27 (AP)—Janina Smolinska, former Polish Bergere dancer and representative of Poland at the 1928 international beauty contest at Galveston, Tex., plans to wed next week despite deportation proceedings pending against her.



Janina Smolinska

At a recent hearing Miss Smolinska pleaded with immigration authorities not to press charges of overstaying an extension of her six months' visitor's permit. She asked that she be allowed to return to Poland voluntarily so she might re-enter the United States in the preferred quota as the wife of an American citizen. If she is deported she can never legally come back.

With the opening of the 12th annual convention of the Massachusetts Department, American Legion Auxiliary, in Hotel Somerset today, more than 600 delegates answered roll call.

At noon, honor was paid Mrs. Lillian Heaton of Closter, N. J., national vice-president, at a luncheon tendered her by past and present officers of the Massachusetts Department. Mrs. Heaton is guest of honor at the convention throughout the three days of auxiliary business.

Nominations for election are: For president, Mrs. Emma F. Lovejoy, Melrose; for vice-president, Miss Gertrude McLoughlin, Dorchester; Mrs. Helen Collins, Sharon; Mrs. Marie Lariviere, Southbridge; for secretary, Miss Anna Malesky, Fall River; for treasurer, Miss May L. Mahoney, Rockland; for historian, Mrs. Grace E. Keene, New Bedford; for chaplain, Mrs. Elizabeth V. Giblin, Jamaica Plain; Mrs. Grace Murray and Mrs. Helen Lawson.

Four delegates to the national convention will be named.

Mrs. Lillian M. Burnham, department president, is presiding. Today's meeting opened with the address of the colors, invocation by the department chaplain, Mrs. Lettie M. Oppenheim, and the singing of the national anthem, followed by the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

As general chairman of the convention Mrs. Viola H. Broadbent made the address of welcome, to which Mrs. Elizabeth V. Giblin responded for the delegates.

Loud Radio Leads Woman to Death

New York, Aug. 27 (INS)—A neighbor's loud speaker was blamed today for the death of Mrs. Margaret Hendricks, 50, found dead after she disconnected a kitchen gas range pipe.

She left a note saying the blaring of a nearby radio had made life unbearable for her. Mrs. Hendricks recently suffered a nervous breakdown, after which noises irritated her.

Broken Wire Sends Passersby Scurrying

Pedestrians scattered for safety in Lynn today when at Central ave. and Andrew st. a trolley wire snapped and fell to the ground. Automobile and electric car service was tide up for half an hour.

The wire was dead when it fell to the ground, however, the automatic switch at the power house grounding the current.

Center of Country's Population Is Now Near Linton, Ind.

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—The center of population of the United States is now 2.9 miles northeast of Linton, Ind., the Census Bureau said today.

During the period between the census of 1920 and that of 1930 the center of population moved 22.3 miles westward and 7.6 miles southward.

The 1920 center was located near Spencer, Ind., in Owen county.

The spot fixed by the bureau for the title of "Center of Population" is in a farming community in Stockton township of Greene county. The point is 31 miles southeast by south of Terre Haute.

KIDNAPERS SET TURFMAN FREE

Chicago, Aug. 27 (AP)—John J. Lynch, wealthy turfman, who was reported to be kidnaped last Thursday, returned to his home in Lake Geneva, Wis., early today, in his own car and unharmed.

Lynch said he was released by his captors on a street in Kankakee, Ill. After waiting five minutes, as his captors ordered, he took off his blindfold and started his car toward Chicago.

"Nothing was ever said to me during the time I was held," he said, "about my business, or any ransom. I cannot understand this."

4-FT. RISE FOR DORCHESTER AV.

The grade of the roadbed in Dorchester ave., between Summer st. and Fort Point Channel bridge, 500 feet, will be raised four feet in order to permit construction of the $4,000,000 pontoffice subway that thoroughfare.

Agreement to raise the grade was reached today at a conference between Mayor Curley, Postmaster William E. Hurley, Col. Charles F. Gow, former postmaster, H. Wars Barnum and H. M. Stuart of the Boston Elevated, Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston transit commission, Public Works Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke and the members of the Boston street commission.

The project will cost $75,000 and at the conference it was agreed that the federal government would reimburse the city.

BANKERS AND HOOVER CONFER

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—The general business situation was the subject of a White House dinner conference last night between President Hoover and the heads of three large New York banking houses and Governor Eugene Meyer of the Federal Reserve Board.

Holmes and Wise to Seek Walker Ouster

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP)—John Haynes Holmes, pastor of the Community Church in New York, said today that he and Rabbi Stephen Wise would return to New York about the middle of September and immediately renew efforts to have Mayor Walker ousted.

Mr. Holmes, chairman of the City Affairs Committee, petitioned Gov. Roosevelt to remove Mayor Walker last spring. He said he was astounded to note what a bad reputation New York is getting in Europe.

Vet Leads Society to Combat Atheism

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 27 (AP)—A group of Connecticut men today, planning a nationwide battle to eliminate atheism and communism, filed papers of association with the secretary of state forming the American Association for the Militant Combat of Atheism and Communism.

'Double Wife' Weeps When She Is Held on Charge of Bigamy

'I DON'T KNOW, JUDGE, DEAR'

SHE COULD TELL—BUT SHE WON'T

Miss Hilda Ferguson, ex-Follies star, who was present at night club with "Tough Willie", McCabe, Broadway gambler, when latter was stabbed. Police say she knows all about it, but won't tell. She chirped "my dear" to the judge when he held her in $5000 as material witness.

TRIED TO FIND HAPPINESS IN DUAL LIFE

First Husband Hints He May Take Her Back After Court Trial

Worcester, Aug. 27—She was a double wife, in two homes—but there were two husbands. And today Mrs. Elsie L. Lavigne, 40, mother of a 19-year-old daughter, wept in district court when arraigned on a charge of bigamy.

She was still weeping when the court directed that she be examined by Dr. Michael M. Jordan, alienist, to determine whether she shall go under observation in a State institution.

It is only since last June that Mrs. Lavigne, who also, according to the bigamy charge, is Mrs. James Tully by her June marriage and "the Widow Burns" in between, acquired two husbands, after living with her first for 20 years.

According to the charges she was married June 1 to James Tully of Suffield st., a widower and father of two daughters. She met Tully, it is declared, after her original husband, Henry Lavigne, a carpenter, was thrown out of work and she took up practical nursing.

LED DOUBLE LIFE

Before that business slump everything was happy in the Lavigne household, but when the wife was forced to contribute to the household's support—the double life started, police alleged. And today she wept over it all, after asking

PRISONERS PUT THROUGH AT FAST PACE

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—The police lineup—New York's daily parade of cut-throats, swindlers, burglars, mayhem artists and just plain suspects—has been speeded up to a quick-time shuffle.

Now that the citizenry's blood is up and the metropolis has grown to care about the blood staining its streets, roundup days are here again. The dismal procession is longer, and perforce moves more quickly.

Faster and ever faster the prisoners sidestep across the platform in headquarters, mumbling their stories briefly and are hurried off again to cells. Yesterday 141 persons faced the brusque queries of John J. Sullivan, assistant chief inspector. In calmer times the number ranges from 30 to 50.

Sullivan now has to hurry the job a little, for if he didn't it would take most of the day.

UNDER SPOTLIGHT

Even at that the procession takes a long time to pass a point on the platform where the prisoner blinks into blinding lights, faces a microphone and answers blustering questions while detectives ranged behind their superior engrave the suspect's name on their memories.

Loud-speaking apparatus carries the questions and the low-voice answers to every corner of the room.

JAPS SHOWER GIFTS ON LINDYS

Tokio Aug. 27—Given a day to themselves before being led into a round of functions in their honor, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today got some rest, experienced a slight earthquake and visited Japan's two greatest shrines. Tomorrow they will be feted and honored by the government and populace.

Mrs. Lindbergh, who arrived here with a wardrobe weighing only 18 pounds, will require a trunk or two to hold the dresses, kimonos, souvenirs and other gifts pouring in upon her.

The earthquake occurred while they were at breakfast in the home of Dr. R. B. Teusler, their residence during their stay here. A slight rattle of dishes on the table and the trembling of flowers in a vase appraised them of the shock, which did not interrupt their meal.

Later in the day they visited Yasukuni shrine, dedicated to the spirits of soldiers and sailors lost on the battlefields.

Col. Lindbergh then made a trip to Kasumigaura naval base, where he landed yesterday, to inspect his plane.

While the Colonel was at Kasumiguara, Mrs. Lindbergh, accompanied by Mrs. James Russell, hostess at the embassy, and Mrs. Edwin Melville, wife of the embassy councillor, went shopping. They toured the Ginza, Tokio's principal shopping thoroughfare, visiting both the department stores and the tiny shops.

The ministry of communications today disclosed it was planning to petition Emperor Hirohito to decorate Lindbergh with the Order of the Rising Sun.

BEAUTY HELD IN STABBING FRAY

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Miss Hilda Ferguson, one-time Follies girl, who said "my dear" to a judge, was in jail today as a material witness in a night club brawl. Her escort, William "Tough Willie" McCabe, erstwhile aid to Arnold Rothstein, was stabbed and knocked out with a water pitcher. She was unable to provide $5000 bail.

Miss Ferguson, once a close friend of Dot King, whose mysterious murder was a sensation, insisted she knew nothing about the fight, which occurred early yesterday morning in a club on E. 52nd st.

Assistant District Attorney Price, who questioned her for hours, was called "my dear" every time she answered.

"I really do not know anything about it, my dear," she told Judge Feeschi in court as he ordered her detained.

Stories told by several witnesses indicated that two men came into the club, drank with McCabe and then engaged in a fight with him.

Miss Ferguson said she had known McCabe three weeks, but thought his name was Mahoney.

Buffalo for Pet? No, You Can't Keep It in Your Den

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—Buffaloes, if you please, do not make "satisfactory pets," the Department of Interior today advised those city dwellers who have filed application for one of the 100 animals the National Park service wants to give away.

Furthermore, the department said, the buffaloes are from the herd in Yellowstone Park and are to be given gratis to those who will use them for exhibition or propagation purposes, such as to private owners of game preserves. The recipients have to pay the freight and cost of crating.

The government wants to reduce the herd so it will not exhaust Yellowstone's grazing grounds.

Einstein to Visit U. S. Again in Fall

Berlin, Aug. 27 (AP)—The newspaper Vossische Zeitung said today Prof. Albert Einstein intends to visit the United States again in October to continue his scientific work at Mount Wilson observatory.

Mrs. Einstein, however, said nothing had been settled about such a visit.

GALONEK GIRL HELD FOR TRIAL

Worcester, Aug. 27—With tears streaming down her cheeks and supported by crutches, Helen Galonek, 25, of Brookline, stood in superior criminal court today and pleaded not guilty to assault with intent to kill State Trooper Walter McDonnell of the Holden barracks. She was held for trial next Tuesday.

McDonnell was shot in one arm during a wild chase of a car containing Miss Galonek and Robert J. Mahoney, Dorchester bandit, later slain by troopers in Spencer several weeks ago.

The girl still wears a cast on her leg which was broken when the car crashed into a stonewall and Mahoney fled into the woods in a vain attempt to escape.

Seven Dead in Storm

Belgrade, Jugoslavia, Aug. 27 (AP)—Seven persons were killed and numerous others injured in a severe storm which swept Herzegovina.

FIVE INJURED IN NEWTON CRASH

Five persons, including a 6-year-old girl who was returning home after a periodical treatment at Boston City Hospital for infantile paralysis, were seriously injured today in a collision of an automobile on Commonwealth ave., near Bowe pst., Auburndale.

The child is Jennie D'Intinosanto of Glen rd., Weston. She was hurled through a windshield, and was cut about the face, neck and body.

Others hurt are Mrs. Carmelo d'Intinosanto, 42, the child's mother; Mrs. Genevieve M. Cleery, a Weston town nurse, who was taking care of the child; Miss Rachel A. Shaw of Wethersfield, Ct., driver of the other car, and Miss Violet A. Babcock of Wethersfield, Ct., who was with Miss Shaw. All were taken to Newton Hospital.

The accident happened when Miss Shaw swung her car to avoid an obstacle in the road and skidded.

Charge Steam Heated Thermometer Belies California Clime

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 27 (AP) — Charging the United States Weather Bureau with taking its readings here from a steam heated thermometer, San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce and newspapers today noted an exception to official reports showing a maximum of 108 degrees yesterday and 115 degrees for the preceding day.

Defenders of the local clime protested to Col. H. B. Hersey, government meteorologist in Los Angeles, that the official thermometer was within reach of the steam heated atmosphere of a nearby automobile laundry. They presented readings from three other tested thermometers in various parts of town, showing a maximum of only 102.

Holyoke, Aug. 27 (AP)—The body of a well dressed man, believed to be Charles Moody of Salem, was found in one of the Holyoke water power company canals here today. The body had been immersed less than an hour, it was estimated.

GIRL IS DYING IN DEDHAM CRASH

One young woman was seriously hurt and her three companions in a motor party were injured early today when their car skidded in Bridge st., Dedham, and crashed into a telephone pole and was wrecked.

Miss Annabelle McKinnon, 23, a nurse at the Osteopathic Hospital, Jamaica Plain, suffered a fractured skull and severe internal injuries. She was rushed from Dedham Emergency Hospital to Massachusetts General Hospital for an operation.

Her three companions were dragged from the wreckage of the car with lesser injuries. Peter Bruno, 26, of St. Mark rd., Dorchester, the driver, was badly cut about the head and body.

Miss Eleanor Eagan of Gardiner st., West Roxbury, also a nurse at the Osteopathic Hospital, was held for treatment at Boston City Hospital pending examination for a possible brain concussion.

Joseph Dagostino, 24, of Boston st., Dorchester, suffered a broken ankle and lacerations. He was under treatment at City Hospital.

RIGHT TO KILL, SAYS SLAYER

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 27 (AP)—Testimony in the trial of Louis Charzio of Hartford, Ct., was completed today and the case was expected to go to the jury late this afternoon. Charzio is charged with the murder of Clayton Rugg of Cambridge, Vt., a garage owner.

Charzio took the stand at the opening of court to resume testimony. After completion of direct examination, Atty.-Gen. Lawrence Jones called upon the former soldier to re-enact the slaying with Jones taking the role of Rugg.

After re-enacting the crime, Charzio said he could not remember when he loaded or cocked the pistol. He said he left Fort Ethan Allen against army regulations to go to Hartford, Ct., to shoot a man who had stabbed his brother.

Asked if he thought it wrong to shoot a man who stabbed his brother, the defendant answered:

"It wouldn't be wrong to shoot the guy if he died. If he killed my brother it wouldn't be wrong to kill him."

22 FLEE BLAZE IN LAWRENCE

Lawrence, Aug. 27—A general alarm was sounded shortly after noon today for a fire which swept the Fairburn Market at Essex and Franklin sts. in the heart of the business district. Fire Chief Michael McPhee estimated the loss at $20,000.

Ten customers and 12 employes were forced to make a hasty exit when flames broke through the floor of the market. The fire had apparently been smouldering some time in the cooling plant. The hazardous location caused Chief McPhee to call out the entire fire fighting force of the city. Occurring at the noon hour with streets crowded with shoppers and employes of the mills made it necessary to use nearly half the police force of the city to handle the excited crowd.

Youth Dies as Auto Dives Into River

Gilsum, N. H., Aug. 27 (AP)—A youth identified as W. Sidney Sloan of New York and New Canaan, Ct., was killed early today as his automobile careened over a bridge and down a 40-foot embankment into the Ashuelot river.

The young man wore a St. Luke's School ring and carried a card that bore the name of Sloan and an address "Care of A. F. Sears, 1060 Park ave., New York," and an address.

Artillery on Hike

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 27—The Seventh Field Artillery of the regular army will leave Fort Ethan Allen today on its annual two weeks' march and battling imaginary enemies.

Nautilus Brings Up Mud Thousands of Years Old

First Test Made With a New Diving Device by Wilkins' Ship Crew

EXCLUSIVE

Aboard Submarine Nautilus in Arctic Ocean, Aug. 27 (Via Radio Through Tuckerton Station)—A column of Arctic mud seventeen inches long and one inch thick, brown from the surface for fifteen inches and then pale blue, representing the deposits in Polar waters of hundreds or thousands or perhaps hundreds of thousands of years. This is the first result of the operation with the new type of deep sea bottom sampler designed and operated by Professor Sverdrup.

This morning we pushed into ice which was still heaving with the swell of a northeast wind. But the rise and fall was too great for us to shove our steel nose under it.

SIR HUBERT WILKINS. DR. SVERDRUP.
RECORDING DEEP-WATER SOUNDINGS IN ARCTIC

We turned again to the open water and taking chances in the heaving ice field filled the diving chamber with air and then dropped the bottom door, revealing beneath our hull the opalescent sea.

Its temperature at the surface was three degrees below freezing. The depth was 1591 meters (5220 feet).

A glass tube four feet long encased in steel and topped by weights of one hundred pounds, and with a sliding messenger of brass to cap the tube after it was drawn from the bottom, constitutes the bottom sampler.

It was lowered on the end of a special one-eighth inch wire. Nothing of its kind has been used before in Arctic waters. The samples brought up for our collection are unique, but we hope to add many others as we proceed.

ATHLETE HELD IN RUM DEATH

Portland, Me., Aug. 27—Michael R. Curran, 18, star athlete at Cheverus high school here, was held in $10,000 bail for the grand jury today on a charge of manslaughter in the death of Edward Curran, 25.

An argument over a bottle of whisky preceded a fight in which the elder Curran was fatally injured, according to testimony given in municipal court today by Patrolman Fred T. McKenney.

The defendant is not a relative of the dead youth.

Michael Curran admitted having a tussle with the other youth but insisted that no blows were struck by him. Edward Curran died last night from a fractured skull. He also had a broken nose.

Egypt Seeks Action on Cotton Surplus

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—The Egyptian government has approached the United States with a view to taking some international steps to deal with the world cotton situation.

Information from the American legation at Cairo to the State Department has indicated that Egypt has expressed its interest in any measures which should be taken to solve international cotton problems. Egypt is a large producer of long staple cotton.

GIRL VIEWS SUSPECTS

Roxbury, who found the stolen car used by the killers, was taken into the room and as he looked at Manning, he said:

"LOOKS LIKE HIM"

"I saw him running from the automobile, but I did not get a good look at him. He was sideways at the time. He looks like him."

Harry Dyer of Hillside st., Roxbury, who saw two men in the same machine parked near the scene of the holdup and murder, failed to identify anybody.

Miss Sylvania Graves of Oak Grove ter., the next witness, looked at each man carefully, and then said:

"That man looks like him."

"Where did you see him?"

"In that automobile."

At Inspector Claflin's request she stepped up to the man she meant—Manning—and placed her hand on his shoulder.

PICKS OUT POLICEMAN

Then she decided that the other man she saw was a headquarters clerk who was standing at the end of the line, and she left the room not knowing she had picked out a policeman who would be gibed later by his comrades.

"Hedda Christensen," called Inspector Claflin.

The girl came in, tight-lipped and nervous, but controlling herself by a determined effort.

"You were in Mr. Baxter's store on Hillside st. when two men held him up?"

"Yes, sir," she said.

PICKS OUT MANNING

The seven men in the lineup were then ordered to face right and left and to turn their backs, as the girl stared silently at them.

"Do you recognize anybody?"

The girl did not answer. She was looking intently at Manning. Once more they were ordered to turn about. Then to take their hats off.

"That last man has me in doubt," she said suddenly. "I'm not sure."

"Which man? Put your hand on him."

She walked up and put her hand on Manning.

"What do you recognize about him?"

"He is about the size and had a gray hat."

"Anything else?"

"I just think of him. That's all."

CHANGED HIS POSITION

She was led from the room and pictures were taken of the lineup. For a second lineup Manning asked to have a man with a blue suit alongside him. Several times he changed his position in the line.

John J. Cahill viewed the second lineup.

"As far as height and size are concerned, that man—third from left to right—is the man I saw seated in the "auto," he said.

"Are you sure?"

"Yes."

STRAIN ON PRISONER

The ordeal has proved a strain on the prisoner, who wiped his brow with a handkerchief and accepted a cigarette from Arthur Crowley as the test ended.

Thomas Gildea, 23, of Conant st., Roxbury, one of those arrested with Manning, was not identified by anybody who viewed the lineup, and Deputy Supt. MceDivitt said police had nothing against him.

Arrested with Manning and Gildea last night were Ruth Larson, 27, of Newman st., and John Knapp, 23, of Hancock st., Dorchester. The girl and Knapp were not placed in any lineups.

In South Boston district court today a warrant was issued charging Miss Larson and Manning with a statutory offense.

The Larson girl was turned over to police of the City Point station for arraignment later on the statutory charge. Police, who searched Manning's apartment today, allege he and the girl both lived there.

The body of the murdered man was taken to his home in Darling st., Roxbury, this afternoon, and the funeral will take place at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Besides Gildea and Manning, others placed in the lineups today were two men arrested by Sergt. Henry Bailey and Special Officer Albert A. Hurst of East Dedham st. division.

MYSTERIOUS TIP

Manning, Gildea, Miss Larson and Knapp, who is owner of a fleet of taxicabs, were arrested after police received a mysterious telephone tip that somebody in the group knew something about the murder.

The pursuit which culminated in the capture of the quartet, started at Mt. Pleasant and Dudley sts. Lieut. William J. Blake, of the Roxbury Crossing station, at dinner in his home in Johnswood ave., broadcast the alarm after he received an anonymous telephone call which directed him to the corner where, his informant said, he would find the taxicab and its occupants.

"They know something about the murder of the storekeeper last night," said the mysterious caller, a man.

Lieut. Blake notified headquarters, his own station and Dudley st. station. Heavily armed squads of officers concentrated on the corner. A patrol wagon from the Dudley st. station arrived on the scene and, following the instructions of the tipster, located the cab. Sergt. Frank V. Sullivan, gun drawn, started for the taxicab.

As he neared the door, the cab whirled away through the torrent of traffic. The patrol wagon sped in pursuit.

TRAFFIC SCATTERS

Through Dudley st., Adams st., and into Eustis st., the racing cars hurtled, as automobiles and pedestrians scattered into the side streets.

At Adams st. and Eustis ave. the police vehicle drew ahead of the cab, blocked its pathway and forced it to the curb.

ONE OTHER HELD

The taxicab bounced over the cobblestone and came to a halt. Guns drawn, the officers surrounded the cab, and the occupants surrendered.

Sergt. Sullivan entered beside the driver, the other policeman mounted the running boards and the taxicab proceeded toward the Dudley st. station.

As the prisoners were ordered to enter the station, Manning, according to police, flourished a loaded automatic. Sergt. Sullivan struck it from his hand, and covered the other three with his own gun threatening to shoot the first who offered resistance.

Manning and Gildea, police said, yielded two guns, of .22 and .25 caliber, in the search in the police station. They were ordered held on suspicion.

Manning, who said he had no occupation, said he was living on $300 collected from the government on his war certificate, and the proceeds of odd jobs he had done since his release from prison.

Police said that Manning, who is said to use the name of Frank Cavanaugh, was paroled from state prison a year ago.

FIVE KILLED IN PRISON RIOT

Prison guards said Germano, Rosbury and Duver entered the prison hospital for treatment about 8 a. m. The manner in which the shooting started was not explained but Dr. Hornbogen, a former president of the Michigan State Medical Society, who was acting at prison doctor in the absence of Dr. L. L. Youngquist, was shot and killed at the first outburst.

The trusty, Oligschlager, attempted to prevent the escape and was shot in the abdomen, and the guard, Cowling, was wounded.

Guards then forced the trio into the industrial building nearby. Tear gas was thrown into the barricads they erected, and when the gas cleared away the men were found to have committed suicide with the guns they used in their attempted escape.

After quiet had been restored in the hospital section, Hohfer, a prisoner in the "E" wing of the institution, fired at a guard and missed. Hohfer then shot and killed himself.

The branch prison houses the most hardened criminals in the state of Michigan.

Fred Barker, notorious bank robber and killer, was commited several months ago for killing a St. Joseph, Mich., policeman when the officer attempted to question him concerning a minor traffic accident.

More recently the three torch slayers who killed and burned two young couples on a lonely country road near Ann Arbor, Mich., were placed in the institution.

forgiveness from both husbands and her daughter.

Court proceedings were brief, a plea of not guilty being entered by Atty. Charles Dewey, after which Judge Asher ordered her committed to the hospital for observation.

Dressed entirely in black, Mrs. Lavigne appeased as if she had spent a sleepless night in the women's quarters of the jail, where she was forced to remain owing to lack of bail.

"LIFE OF MISERY"

During the night she was visited by Tully, a cable repairer employed in a local factory, and begged his forgiveness. She assured him she would not have done what she did if she had not thought so much of him.

Earlier Mrs. Lavigne had told police her chief regret was the sorrow she had caused Tully and her daughter Christine.

Hopefully she expressed the opinion that a divorce from Lavigne would permit straightening out her difficulties, if the court were not too severe.

Lavigne, who caused his wife's arrest, declared he was considering taking her back after the court case was finished.

Mrs. Lavigne, in explaining her marriage to Tully, told police that life with Lavigne had been 20 years of dull misery." She said he worked only part of the time, and she was forced to do nursing to help support the family.

TRAILED BY MATE.

"When I met Mr. Tully," she said, "I admired him so much I decided he was the answer to my domestic troubles. I had never been anything but unhappy with Lavigne, and I thought this was my chance to obtain a little happiness.

"Mr. Tully knew me as Mrs. Burns, a widow, and when he proposed to me I accepted. We were married June 1 at the Church of the Ascension by the pastor, the Rev. Joseph G. Daley. Mr. Tully's two daughters, Barbara, 18, and Frances, 19, were present.

"Our honeymoon was spent at the Tully home in Suffield st., where it looked as though my hopes were going to be realized in full. I was very happy. I explained my absence from the Cambridge st. house to Lavigne by saying I was working on a nursing case.

"From time to time I visited the other house, and I thought everything was all right. It was a great surprise to me when I was arrested yesterday. I think neighborhood gossip aroused Lavigne's suspicions."

The deserted husband said his suspicions were aroused by the vague nature of his wife's "nursing" work. He said that eventually he decided to follow her and she led him to the house in Suffield st., where she lived with Tully and his daughters.

BISHOP WANTS STATEWIDE POLICE RADIO

Co-operative use of radio by police and public prosecutors to cope with modern crime methods has become an absolute and immediate necessity, it was declared by District Attorney Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County in a statement made public today.

Bishop has put his views into practical use by installing a radio in his office at East Cambridge court house and by equipping county automobiles. He is the first of the eight district attorneys in the state to show this enterprise.

He said the expense is trifling. The "blinker" signal light system is inadequate and isn't to be compared with the speed and wide range of radio, he asserted.

STATE-WIDE DEMAND

District Attorney Bishop's ringing indorsement of radio in combatting crime came simultaneously today with endorsements by President Joseph McGrath of Boston City Council and other councilors of the plan to equip the Boston police department with radio and radio-equipped cruising police cars. The movement in favor of police use of radio is hourly increasing in volume not only in Boston but throughout the state.

"If every police department and district attorney in the State united in the use of radio to cope with new and radical crime methods, it would convert the Commonwealth into a sort of combined police headquarters and the plan could be made national in scope and efficiency in a very short time," said Bishop.

NEW TYPES OF THUGS

"We are coping with new types of desperadoes, chiefly impulsive youths who are actually to be more feared than seasoned yeggs of other days. The youngster shoots with less provocation. There is an utter disregard for life. Striking examples were the murder of a 70-year-old grocer in Roxbury a few nights ago and the recent murder of the night attendant of a gas station in Somerville.

"It is possible that if cruising police cars in Boston had been equipped with radio the slayers of that old grocer might have been caught. I think Boston and every city and town in the state ought to be equipped with radio without delay. Radio is one of our strongest weapons with which to strike back at the underworld.

PROSECUTOR'S RADIO AIDS WAR ON CRIME

Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop, the first district attorney of any of the eight counties in the State to install radios in county automobiles to aid in the war against gangsters and crime, is here shown in his radio-equipped car. He has installed broadcasting equipment in his office and can flash crime instructions to all the county police cars in a moment. He expects the low wave equipment to be of great aid. (Staff photo.)

N. Y. CRIME WAR SPEEDING UP

dimly lit except for the platform.

"How did you kill him, boy?" the inspector's magnified voice bites into the silence.

"It was this way, your honor," a gawky youth on the platform whispers. "I was walking down the street with a bunch of fellers when up. One of them grabbed me by the I pushed him. 'What are you, a wise guy,' he says, and he comes for me. Knowing what he was going to do, I punched him in the stomach. Then I punch him in the stomach some more."

"You must have a powerful right to kill a man with it," the inspector says. "Step down."

"You're wanted down South for murder, Charlie," he rasps at a small negro, hardly more than five feet four, as the detectives can plainly see by the blue and brown lines on the wall behind his back. "How did that happen, Charlie?"

"Two fellers jumped on me and I cut 'em," the negro says with a smirk.

"So the gang calls you 'The Chief,' do they," the inspector leers at a tough-looking customer with a craggy jaw. "They'll have to get a new chief, then. You're a good man to put away. Get out."

Enter a middle-aged man clad in expensive tweeds, his moustache points carefully waxed. They call him a confidence man, with a record that reads like a list of the nation's principal cities. The inspector asks him a question.

"I beg your pawdon, sir?" he inquires delicately.

"I beg yours, too," Sullivan flings back. "Get outta there quick."

One by one they face the lights and tell their brief tales. Hardly any but protests innocence. A dark man with smouldering eyes had a stiletto "just for company." A negro with a revolver bought it from a "feller named Mike for a feller named Slim workin' on the railroad."

A slender girl, domestic in a fashionable house, shrieks that they can't prove she stole the jewels. A suave man, branded a "phony lawyer from around Broadway and 42d st." politely denies any wicked intentions in connection with those bonds.

So the grim show goes on.

HEARST PLAN IS FAVORED BY LABOR

Syracuse, N. Y., Aug. 27—With the backing of the executive council, which insures its adoption, a resolution endorsing the William Randolph Hearst Plan for a "prosperity bond issue" of at least $5,000,000,000 to restore prosperity was introduced in the State Federation of Labor convention.

The resolution calls upon President Hoover to convene Congress for the purpose of authorizing the bond issue, the proceeds to be expended in job providing public improvements and loaned to states and municipalities where called for.

Huge Frayne, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor was the principal speaker at today's session, declaring the present economic depression was brought about "deliberately, out of greed and that unnamed individuals responsible for it "could have prevented it in the first instance and stopped it in its early stages."

LYNN HONORS POLANDO AND BOARDMAN

Lieut. Glenn C. Silsbury, U. S. Army Air Corps, one of the four Army planes escorting Russell Boardman and John Polando to Boston, failed to land at Boston Airport at 1:30 today. Fears were expressed for his safety.

Lynn opened its arms today to John Polando, its favorite son, and Russell Boardman, co-holders of the world's non-stop distance airplane flight record from New York to Turkey.

Threatening weather almost forced the fliers to make an automobile trip from Hyannis to Lynn, but, fortunately, the weather cleared and allowed them to fly their plane, "Cape Cod", to Boston Airport.

After circling the city in their plane at 1:30, the fliers landed at the airport, and were met by a delegation from Lynn. Escorted by a detail of motocycle police, they made the trip to Lynn in automobiles in record time.

Mayor J. Fred Manning looks to meet the fliers at City Hall late in the afternoon and present them with a purse of gold and gold watches. The purse amounted to $2000 for Polando.

In Lynn, the fliers were the guests of honor in a parade headed by two bands.

Both fliers were relieved when they heard that the customs officials in New York had discovered that the gifts brought home by the aviators were not subjected to duty.

After the parade the fliers were to rest for a few hours, and then they will be the guests tonight of the Lynn Press Club at a banquet in Swampscott.

WIDOW AND 3 CHILDREN ARE FEARED SLAIN

Park Ridge, Ill., Aug. 27 (INS)—A widow and her three children who disappeared from this Chicago suburb two months ago were the objects of a wide search today as police uncovered evidence which led them to believe the four may have been slain by a matrimonial agency swindle. Mrs. Ada Eicher and her children have not been seen here since the last of June.

William A. McKee, village mayor, became suspicious Saturday of a man coming to take possession of the Eicher home. The man used the name of Cornelius Peirson, Clarksburg, W. Va., in letters to Mrs. Eicher. He has not been seen since he was questioned by H. W. Johnson, chief of police.

Chief Johnson found the Eicher home being stripped and the belongings stored in the garage by Pierson who showed a letter, supposedly from Mrs. Eicher, authorizing him to dispose of her property.

"Mrs. Eicher has gone to Colorado for a vacation," Pierson said. "I'm going to marry her. The children have been sent to Europe."

Officers found 50 letters written by Pierson to Mrs. Eicher. They revealed he obtained her name from a matrimonial bureau. They believe Pierson corresponded with the widow with the intention of obtaining her property valued at about $20,000. They planned to dig in the Eicher yard today to see if any bodies were buried.

'Blessings on Thee, Little Man,' Say Gardeners to Ford

Cincinnati Aug. 27 (AP)—Henry Ford today had the blessing of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America on his projected "no garden—no job" plan for employes of his Iron Mountain, Mich., plant.

H. G. Marquart, Orange Park, N. Y., president of the association, in convention here, added that the city worker, however, would appreciate "more than ever our growers' vegetables" after a spell of his own gardening.

"If Henry Ford wants his workmen to have small home gardens," said Marquart, "that is all right with us. We wish him luck."

Mantilla, Symbol of Romance, Vanishes

Madrid, Aug. 27 (AP)—The mantilla, lacy symbol of Spanish beauty and romance, has disappeared with the trappings of royalty. With the coming of the republic, modern, cosmopolitan headdress is worn by the senoritas at bull fights and other public entertainments.

There are no more court festivals whereat to display the high Sevillan comb and mantilla.

Stimson Breakfast Guest of MacDonald

London, Aug. 27 (AP)—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson strode into Downing st. today before the dual crowd had gathered and had breakfast with Prime Minister MacDonald.

MacDonald, worn out by three weeks of unremitting labor, is going back to Lossiemouth tonight for a rest, but will return to his office here on Sunday to prepare for Monday's full cabinet meeting.

"TOASTING" expels SHEEP-DIP BASE naturally

(Black, biting, harsh irritant chemicals)

present in every tobacco leaf

"They're out—so they can't be in!"

The finest tobacco quality plus throat protection.

Every LUCKY STRIKE is made of the finest tobacco leaves the world can offer—the finest from Turkey—the finest from Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, Georgia and the Carolinas—the Cream of many Crops throughout the world. But all tobacco leaves, regardless of price and kind, as nature produces them, contain harsh irritants. LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—a process that mellows, that purifies, that includes the use of the modern Ultra Violet Ray—expels certain harsh irritants naturally present in every tobacco leaf. We sell these expelled irritants to manufacturers of chemical compounds, who use them as a base in making sheep-dip*, as well as a powerful spraying solution for trees, flowers and shrubs—enough to permit the daily dipping of over 50,000 sheep or the daily spraying of many thousands of trees. Thus, you are sure these irritants, naturally present in all tobacco leaves, are not in your LUCKY STRIKE. "They're out—so they can't be in!"

No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

GIFFORD SEEKS DATA TO GAUGE RELIEF NEEDS

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—An estimate of the total funds needed to prevent acute distress among unemployed next winter was being sought today by Walter S. Gifford, national relief director, and his staff.

Among the evidence being gathered were statistics from the children's bureau of the Labor Department, indicating that distress will be materially greater than last winter.

The children's bureau figures also indicated a larger portion of the burden probably will be borne by money derived from taxation than from voluntary contributions to charitable organizations.

Gifford has not yet ventured a guess on the amount necessary to meet needs of the jobless and their families but has devoted his time to making arrangements for the national drive for funds and organizing a force to carry it out.

Miss Katherine Lenroot, acting chief of the children's bureau, has been co-operating with Gifford in making his plans and has turned over to him data on conditions.

Her statistics indicated that the expenditure of relief funds decreased materially with the arrival of warm weather last spring, but were still much higher than for the same period the year before.

40 KILLED BY BOMBARDMENT

Lisbon, Portugal, Aug. 27 (AP)—Artillery blazed from the hills around the village of Caneza today as troops bombarded rebels who sought refuge there after yesterday's short-lived revolt against the administration of President Oscar Carmona.

Forty persons were reported killed in the shelling and 200 wounded.

Lisbon itself, after an outbreak that cost a score of lives, was quiet today, but soldiers were on guard in the streets.

The revolutionary movement seems to have had its origin in the removal from office last week of Col. Schappa de Azevedo, who as Minister of War refused to sign deportation orders against certain army officers charged with participation in the Madeira revolt last May.

The colonel was said to be among the 200 prisoners taken by the Government.

THE LOVES OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN

King of Laughs and World's Unluckiest Lover

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(No blighted romance embittered Charlie Chaplin as did his broken love affair with Lita Grey. Charlie never got over her insinuations which brought into the proceedings the names of many stage and screen celebrities.)

CHAPTER 22

A blighted romance had never before taken such toll of Charlie's emotions as did his broken marriage with Lita Grey.

Following the divorce proceedings, the comic went into seclusion. He went back to the hills to find the consolation he knew they would give him.

He wanted to be alone with his thoughts and begin anew evaluating the fundamentals of love and life.

His friends say, his smash with Lita forced him to revamp his entire life.

It placed upon him the firm belief that the rest of his days should be spent as a bachelor.

REALIZED MISTAKE

When Charlie was made a free man by the California courts, he pledged himself to a freedom for life that was not part of marriage.

Charlie realized his mistake. He realized that the union was of two foreign mentalities and personalities striving for a fusion that could never come about.

Disputes and quarrels over matters foreign to Charlie's nature and likes made life almost unbearable for both. They had neither tastes nor minds in common.

After the divorce, Charlie was placed under the care of a physician. He dropped 40 pounds, and 40 pounds to a man Charlie's size, becomes an important issue. The limitation floored the screen comic.

Not only did the divorce go hard on him, but the awarding of the two children to the mother hit even harder.

He would sit for hours, I was told, and talk about nothing but his two sons. He brooded over them. He worried that he wouldn't have a hand in their making of character and the shaping of their personalities.

Charlie adores those two boys. And if today he doesn't love their mother, they surely don't lack love from him.

Only a few months ago he was talking about them to another newspaper girl, a friend of mine who writes for a Chicago paper.

He told her:

"My boys are nice. I saw mine last the other day. That's something I got out of the week. I suppose I ought'n to say it, but they're terribly smart boys. They are learning Spanish and the little fellow jabbered away to me in perfect Spanish. You ought to see him. He knits his brows and thinks real hard before he speaks.

"It would be great, having those two boys around, watching them grow up, playing with them and everything, but marriage is too big a price to pay for it. Lita is sorry now about a lot of things. She even started to say, 'Charlie, I'm older now, and wiser. Maybe—'

"But I stopped her there. Looking back, I can't understand how that marriage happened. Nothing in common—nothing. Just two foreign bodies drifting together for no good reason."

And so the anticipated remarriage that Hollywood presaged shortly after the divorce has been dissipated by the principal himself.

TURNED ELSEWHERE

Lita, as a matter of fact, turned her heart and affections in other ways, giving justification to the rumor that Roy D'Arcy was to be her next husband.

Charlie continued to visit his former wife, well, hoping that the happiness we all seek in life would come to her, in her gossiped marriage to D'Arcy, another screen actor.

Phil Baker, accordion player of the revues was also mentioned as possible suitor for Lita's hand. Phil told the public he was waiting the expiration of his and Lita's theatrical contracts before wedding. Lita announced her engagement to Baker, but it was announcement that never was realized in marriage.

Two years ago, when rumor persisted in wedding Lita to D'Arcy, the public was informed that the screen villain had secretly rewed his former wife, Mrs. Laura Duffy Guiali.

It was trouble and sorrow aplenty for the divorced wife of the famous film comedian, who was keeping much to himself.

When the name of Merna Kennedy, who played the feminine lead in "The Circus," was mentioned in the divorce proceedings, Hollywood was agog.

No one suspected a romance between the red-headed leading lady for Chaplin and the screen comic himself.

GOSSIP STILLED

Yet Lita heaped ghastly insinuations on the gorgeous but fiery young Merna's head. Charlie was angered beyond words.

Hollywood anticipated another romance. They talked of nothing else. And Charlie, still suffering from the stunning effects of the divorce courts, had to listen to his name constantly oeing coupled with that of his leading lady's.

He stopped work for a while.

He refused to see or discuss business with Merna.

But the gossip mongers soon realized that their idle prattle was nothing more than that. For Merna who had been in love with Jimmy Hall, and still is, for that matter, told the wide and curious world about it.

There are some who suspect that Merna and Jimmy Hall are married, yet confirmation has not been secured from either side.

Charlie was happy again when the rumor ceased and when Merna could walk with him and talk with him about their pictures, without fingers of suspicion being pointed at them.

During this period Charlie was foot-loose and fancy free.

"It got so that Charlie refused to trust his opinion of a woman, his friend told me. "He saw a beautiful woman and he was afraid of himself."

But this time Lita had gone her way. She accepted a vaudeville engagement and went on the road.

Only last January she figured in the news when police were notified that she and her escort, Georges Carpentier, French prize-fighter, had been kidnaped and robbed of $14,000 in jewelry and $15 cash.

Well, anyway, soon after the divorce decree became final, Charlie the same Charlie, was again seen on the boulevards, but not alone—Georgia Hale, the little lady of his picture, "The Gold Rush," was resting on his arm.

A new romance?

Exeter Program

'AVE MARIA' TO INTRODUCE NEW COLOR CAMERA

Betty Compson Signed for Play to Be Produced by Dr. Peters

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor.

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

Los Angeles, Aug. 27—The independents are certainly up and doing. A few months ago when any of our well known stars signed to make an independent picture, little was said about it. In fact, most of the players felt the less said the better. The independents now are having things so much their own way that no actor is ashamed to be associated with them.

Louella O. Parsons

Betty Compson has some interesting plans. She will make a picture, written, produced and directed by Dr. Otto A. Peters. I think I ought to explain something about Dr. Peters. He was the technical adviser on "All Quiet On The Western Front" and he is a scholar of more than average intelligence.

He has invented a camera called psychophone which is something new in that it records sound and color simultaneously. Dr. Peters will use this psychophone in making "Ave Maria," starring Betty, and from all accounts his experiment should be interesting. At least Betty Compson thinks it is interesting enough to give it a try.

Cast of Stars

If anyone tells me again the cast in "Leftover Ladies" is something to remember I will throw stones at someone's window, stand Parsons, Jr., in the corner or do something equally desperate. There isn't a chance of my not mentioning that Samuel Bischoff starts Monday on this independent because I have been reminded no less than five times that here is a sterling cast, it's Mr. Bischoff's first independent at Tiffany and that the following box office names have been signed. Listen well. Grant Withers, Walter Byron, Alan Mowbray, Marjorie Rambeau, Claudia Dell and Rita La Roy. An amazing list at that.

Seen and Heard

Dorothy Hall, whose Behaize in "The Greeks Had a Word For It," has been much commented on, has had a test made. Dorothy is wanted for "Working Girl" at Paramount and she'll take the job if her time can be arranged to meet Paramount's schedule.

Snapshots of Hollywood

'Mikado' First of Operettas

A series of the most popular Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, with stellar casts and in the accepted Savoy manner, will be brought to the Lyric Theater beginning September 14.

The ever-popular "Mikado" will be the first offering of the cycle. The sponsors of this Gilbert and Sullivan series, anxious to keep abreast of the times, have selected the Lyric because of its large seating capacity so that it could be possible to scale the prices for the thin pocketbook. The highest price for evening performances will be $1.50.

Radio Razzed in Musical

Major J. Andrew White, for many years quite a fellow in broadcasting circles, is coming to Boston as a musical comedy producer, promising to poke fun at the whole radio industry.

His production is known as "Tell A Vision" and it has songs, girls and burlesque characterizations of those prominent in the other business. This is his entrance into the theatre and he loudly proclaims that he is "going the limit."

Major White, as the oldtimers recall, was a somebody as an announcer.

DAWES SEES BIG LESSON SLUMP IS TEACHING

Kirkcudbright, Scotland, Aug. 27 (AP)—The world's experience in the present economic distress will be of great value as a guide for the future and in bringing about needed domestic reforms in the various nations, Ambassador Charles G. Dawes said in a speech here today.

He spoke at the dedication of a memorial gymnasium given to Kirkcudbright by Thomas Cochran, New York banker.

"Today," he said, "practically all the peoples of the world are, for the time being, in the midst of adverse conditions and business depression. It is not a pleasant way to live.

MAN ERRS WHEN RICH

"But irrespective of the fact that we deplore it, we must recognize the important benefits which will accrue from it eventually.

"When common prosperity exists among the peoples, a common cause of it is not always perceived by the masses; but they sense the cause of common suffering.

HARD ON DEMAGOGUES

"In general, an international negotiation results in a compromise, the terms of which are, in effect, dictated chiefly by balanced consideration of domestic public sentiments.

"Such a condition of public sentiment arising from mass feelings silences the demagogues, who, in normal times, by promoting international prejudices for internal political purposes, embarrass and delay, even fi they do not actually prevent, sensible and constructive agreements of mutual self-interest among the nations."

AUXILIARY OF POSTAL CLERKS ELECTS HEADS

Mrs. Claude B. Reed of Dallas, Tex., was re-elected president; Mrs. Carl Shook of Alma, Mich., was re-elected vice-president; Mrs. H. G. Daubenhayar of Oklahoma City, Okla., secretary; Mrs. Charles J. Watrous of Chicago, treasurer, and Mrs. Clarence DeWitt of New York was again named editor of the "Post Office Clerk," official newspaper of the organization.

It was voted by a large majority that Chicago would be the site of the next convention, in 1933.

The 56 women present, representing 13 states and 26 auxiliaries, also elected as trustees Mrs. Leon May of Alma, Mich.; Mrs. Delle C. Kirby of Hawthorne st., Roxbury, and Mrs. J. M. Riley of Norwalk, Ct.

A five-day week was voted yesterday during the convention. Another resolution adopted unanimously called for all the national officers of the association to back up such a plan and have it enacted.

The resolution calls attention to the fact that the five-day week is already an established fact in several trades and in a number of large industries and claims that the government should set the example rather than follow private initiative in this matter.

Shiny Marble 'Cover' for the Tomb of the 'Unknown'

Washington, Aug. 27 (AP)—The tomb of America's Unknown Soldier soon will be sheathed in new, shining marble from Colorado.

A wooden shed stood over the shrine today as workmen prepared for their task of replacing old stone with new.

Three months will be required to carve a 65-ton marble block to be placed directly over the tomb.

Congress appropriated $419,000 for improving approaches, and has made $47,000 available for arble work.

Girl Kills Herself Over Brother-In-Law

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 27 (AP)—Kathryn Duncan, 18, of Jellco, Tenn., was dead today from poison that relatives said she apparently swallowed because her brother-in-law objected to her friendship with a young man.

The girl had visited her sister, Mrs. Dominick Young, for several weeks. She and Young quarreled because she was seen with a young man.

'Rolling His Own' Kills Counterfeiter

Sydney, Aug. 27 (INS)—Because he rolled his own cigarettes, Edgar Stokes, Anustralia's greatest counterfeiter met death in his own illicit workroom.

He smoked a cigarette which had been rolled with his cyanide-covered fingers and died from poisoning.

TWO ROADS TO REOPEN SHOPS

With approximately the same complement of employes as before the Readville shops of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad will re-open Sept. 8.

Some work has been done during the last few months, increasing gradually up to the present time.

The Boston and Albany Railroad announced that the locomotive shops of the road at West Springfield would resume operations next Monday. This will afford employment for about 400 men.

RUNAWAY BOY TRIO SOUGHT

Three boys are missing from Houghs Neck, but only two have been reported to the police department. One of the boys is Albert Harvey of 49 Crosby st.

J. L. Keating reported his son, Joseph, missing, and expressed the opinion that the boy had gone away with the Harvey boy and a boy named Parmalee.

RADIO-PIANO IS COMING TO U. S.

New York, Aug. 27—The radio has been grafted on the piano in a new, five-fold instrument, an invention announced in Germany.

It looks like a grand piano, but combines piano, spinet, radio, harmonium and phonograph.

It is so small and light two men could easily carry it into Carnegie hall, where its music would fill the edifice. Many concert pianos require eight men to move.

Dr. Alexander Russell, arranging to introduce it in America, said today it is four feet seven inches long and is played like a piano. It has no sounding board, and where the ordinary piano has three-strings, it has only two, which are struck by exceptionally tiny hammers.

DUCE SEES 800 PLANES 'FIGHT'

Spezia, Italy, Aug. 27 (AP)—Eight hundred army airplanes, swooping down from the north in a mimic battle, swiped out part of this important shipbuilding center today while King Victor Emanuel, Premier Mussolini and the heads of the army and navy looked on.

It was the beginning of the first Italia maneuvers conducted by Italy's new-born air force under the direction of the bearded young aviator, Italo Balbo, minister for air and leader of the recent formation flight to South America.

For several days there will be attacks on other strategic points in exercises to test the vulnerability of this section of Italy.

Half of People in New York Have Jobs

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—Nearly half of the people of more than 10 years in the boroughs of Manhattan, Bronx and Queens, New York, were gainfully employed on April 1, a census report showed today.

The census figures shown that in the Bronx 549,321 persons of 10 years of age and older were employed, or 43.5 per cent; in Queens, 469,005 were so employed, or 43.6 per cent, and in Manhattan, 995,085, or 53.3 per cent.

Women composed 20 to 34 per cent of the employed.

MOTHER FRANTIC AS BABY SUFFERS FROM ECZEMA

Resinol heals him quickly

"When my baby was a few weeks old eczema broke out on his body. I tried various treatments but none of them seemed to give him any relief. He only grew worse and cried all the time. I was almost frantic. A friend of Mother's suggested Resinol Ointment. I got a jar and in about a week's time the improvement was amazing."

CAN ONE EVER FORGET ONE'S OLD LOVES? NOT when they are the rocky coast and clear blue water of the North Shore and bring back sweet memories.

MRS. H. G. CUTLER

YESTERDAY WE MOTORED down to Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Cutler's beautiful estate, "Dorrich", at Swampscott, where the annual flower show was being held, and what a wonderful place THAT is. And what a charming hostess SHE is. Smartly gowned in a white and black thin silk with white straw shade hat, she greeted hundreds of flower lovers from near and far who arrived to view the beautiful and original exhibitions.

THE OUT-OF-DOOR GARDENS were a riot of color, which, facing the cobalt blue sea, was a wonderful sight to behold. There is no lovelier site on the North Shore than "Dorrich," with its broad verandas overlooking smooth green lawns and the sea beyond. The day was perfect, bright and cool, and that deep sniff of the salt air was thrilling. Chatting gayly with her hosts of friends, Miss Dorothy, daughter of Mrs. Cutler, skipped over the lawns in a light blue crepe, hatless, her pretty bob blowing in the breeze.

Mrs. Creighton in Charge of Grounds

MARGY EMERSON CHOSE TO WEAR A LARGE HAT of brown to keep the freckles away, and Connie Creighton assisted her mother, Mrs. Albert M. Creighton, who was in charge of the grounds, in a becoming salmon pink crepe. We hear that sister Peggy—who captured one of Boston's "best" this year, more power to her—has arrived back from the honeymoon and the young couple are staying with the Creightons for a few weeks. Mrs. Creighton looked very girlish in pale blue.

IT WAS ALL SO COZY AND intimate: the garage was the scene of the winter window displays, a new idea and awfully interesting. Each window of the garage was used in a different way to show what could be done during the cold months with available greens and indoor plants—well worth thinking about. Another sort of out-of-door playhouse was the Hall of Fame—only those who had won prizes for five years or more were eligible to show in this important place—and although on a small scale, the arrangement of blossoms was simply too lovely. Mrs. Frederick Beebe, Honorary President of the Garden Club, was awarded first prize for a blue and yellow display, and she received the congratulations of her friends in a soft black chiffon gown, looking very sweet and happy.

Show for Children

ANOTHER ANNUAL CLASS was one which taxed the imagination of the exhibitors and was too amusing—the container must be original: to mention only a few, one was an egg on a tiny wire stand from which mignonette peeped out; another was a honeydew melon, a wonderful shade of deep ivory, scooped out and filled with blue and yellow flowers. A novel display was an old frying pan with swamp lilies floating in it and a small green frog perched on the handle. There were many others, clever and amusing.

EVEN THE CHILDREN HAD a tiny little show house and what a nice idea it is to encourage small hands and growing minds in the art of form and color. There was a unique display of tiny vases hardly bigger than thimbles and what a rare collection of small variegated flowers and greens graced this part of the show.

IT SEEMED AS THOUGH the whole North Shore turned out for this popular event. Tea was served from 3:30 until 6 and a group of dainty post - debbies and their friends mingled with the crowd, assisting at the tea-tables and proffering the most enticing sandwiches and tiny cakes. Among them we noted Rosamond Holton in turquoise blue and a peach of a tan; Leonora Kimball, a striking blonde with a lovely figure; Jane Bogardus in pink with an effective bob; Betty Carpenter in white and brown print and freckles to match, who confided to us that she would ADORE to write, and we are going to remember THAT; Lillian Shuman, Nancy Spalding, Polly Powers, Frances Foster, Mary Brown, Louise Forbes and Sabina Lovejoy.

Miss Holton

Dances Popular

WE BADE OUR HOSTESS A reluctant adieu to listen in for you to the news along the shore. We hear there is a smart, new dancing place at Gloucester. The Night School, quite an intriguing title, which it derives from that fact that it is held in an old schoolhouse, AND the blackboards are covered with "lessons for the young," such as: "Two wives—bigamy; one wife—monotony." "Husbands are like new shoes—you don't know when they squeeze until it's too late to change them" and "Don't put it off—put it over."

* * *

THE EASTERN YACHT CLUB has been a very popular rendezvous this summer and the dances have been well attended. Mrs. Otis Richardson gave a large dinner for Polly—this year's debbefore one of the dances, when Jane Bancroft was visiting her. It is quite good form to go to the movies at the Eastern on Sunday nights—and it is not as dull as it may sound.

PERCY MUSGRAVE TO WED MARGUERITE SWANN IN OCTOBER

DEBS IN COHASSET SUMMER COLONY

MISS DEAN MISS BIRD MISS JOHNSON

"Three little debutante maids are we." The Misses Dorothea Dean, daughter of the James Deans; Alma Bird, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bird, and Katherine Johnson, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Howard Johnson, all make their homes in Cohasset for the summer.

Nuptials Link Prominent Families

Two prominent Boston and Milton families will be joined on Oct. 10 with the wedding of Miss Marguerite Swann, daughter of Mrs. John Butler Swann, of Valley rd., Milton, to Mr. Percy Musgrave, Jr., Boston banker and son of Mrs. Percy Musgrave, of Marlboro st. and Manchester, N. H.

Marriage intentions were filed yesterday at City Hall with the October date tentatively set for the wedding.

Miss Swann, Vincent Club girl and Junior Leaguer, is a debutante of the 1928-1929 season. She was educated at Milton Academy and in Italy.

Her fiance is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1927. He is connected with the banking firm of Stone & Webster & Blodgett, Inc.

Bennet Wedding

An important marriage that comes off this Saturday, the 29th, is that of Miss Hope Bennet and Mr. Walter F. Wyeth, Jr. The ceremony will take place in lovely Trinity Church, Newport, at four o'clock and the reception immediately afterwards at "Wildacre." Several informal affairs have been given in their honor, and tomorrow evening Miss Rose Grosvenor Davis, who will be Miss Bennet's maid of honor, will give a dinner dance at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Davis, for the wedding party. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Bennet, parents of the bride, will entertain for them at luncheon just before the wedding on Saturday.

Mr. Wyeth's usher group includes Mr. Robert L. Debevoise, Mr. Dwight Fishwick, Mr. Barrett W. Stevens, all of New York; Mr. Talbot Blake, Mr. Henry L. Johnson of Boston, John O. Ross of Philadelphia, Francis L. Spalding of Washington, and Jacob Slade of Baltimore. This evening they will have their bachelor dinner at the Harvard Club, Boston.

After a short wedding trip Mr. Wyeth will bring his bride to live in Brookline. He is a graduate of Harvard, with the class of '29, and has always made his home here.

One of the hundred and eighty-seven debutantes of the coming season, whose identity with Boston was rather a puzzle, is Miss Jane McLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colin McLeod. We saw by the calendar of dates that she was coming out in Buffalo at a luncheon to be given by her aunt, Mrs. Hugh MacDowell, in the Country Club there on September 15th. Now we see that she is also to make her debut in Boston on November 13th, at the Algonquin Club.

New Frocks Light at Top

By ANN ARDEN

DRESSES THAT are pieced together in intricate ways, running light toward the tops and dark toward the skirts, are very much in vogue.

THE MOST classic of them are black against pure white. But this may be varied in many ways. There are the off-white shades that do quite as nicely as the pure white and are often more becoming.

ALWAYS BELOVED of the knowing French woman is the black and white costume, such as the model pictured. Moulded Vionnet lines obviate any need of trimming. The black satin skirt portion is fagotted to diamond-shaped sections, extending to point of collar fold banding shallow V neckline, and continuing to tie sash, faced in white at back of waistline. The sleeves are in one with the white satin bodice top, and widen to graceful bell shape at the wrist.

THE HAT is from Mme. Agnes, a black handkerchief felt, the brim curved to three points, one over right eye, a white plume is posed on left side, its fronds braided to a narrow line, falling in fluffy cascade at the back and curving to right side.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to The Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WAAB.

Miss Andrew a Bride

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 27—Mrs. Grace B. Andrew has announced the marriage of her daughter, Miss Dorothy, to Mr. Hugh McCandless of New York, son of the Rev. Thomas P. McCandless, rector of St. Michael's Episcopal Church, New York, which occurred in Greenwich, June 2.

After the wedding Mr. McCandless, who was graduated from Yale in 1930, sailed for Europe with his father. His bride returned to this city. Mrs. Andrew said the marriage was known by both families although the wedding announcement had been withheld.

Mr. McCandless enters his second year at a New York theological seminary this fall.

Justice Holmes Gaining Fast

Beverly, Aug. 27—Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, of the United States Supreme Court, who is suffering from a severe cold at his home on Hale st., Beverly Farms, continues to show improvement.

At the Holmes home it was said that Mr. Holmes had passed a very comfortable night. Friends are confident his health will allow him to resume his duties in Washington this fall.

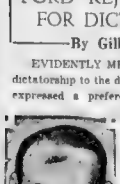
FORD REJECTS DOLE, FOR DICTATORSHIP

By Gilbert Seldes



GILBERT SELDES

EVIDENTLY MR. HENRY FORD prefers dictatorship to the dole. It is not that he has expressed a preference for Mussolini over MacDonald; he has simply gone his own way and announced that "next year, every man with a family who is employed at the plant, will be required to have a garden of sufficient size to supply his family with at least a part of his winter's vegetables, or he will find himself out of a job." Mr. Ford has never been one to consult the sensibilities of other people; when he wanted to pay $6 or $7 a day as a minimum wage, he did not ask his competitors how they felt about it. And now that he wants gardens, he'll have gardens, or else——

No Time for Rebels

Few men, next winter, will refuse to work for Mr. Ford because he compels them to raise vegetables; many men will see the private economic soundness of the plan and, I suppose, only the farmers in Michigan will wonder what good Mr. Ford will do for them, and where their vegetables will be sold. It happens not to be a good year for resentment or independence. But something in the announcement suggests that Mr. Ford is living in another age—the age of the feudal overlord. When Mr. Ford refused to allow his workers to drink, he was protecting his own interests; when he ordered them to use their spare time in the way he thinks best, he is merely an old-fashioned tyrant. The unlikeliest thing in the world is that his tyranny will be opposed today or tomorrow; those things take time. And it's of little use to go back to the records to recall what happened to the tyrants of the feudal system. As Mr. Ford has said, "History is bunk."

Behind Mr. Ford's idea lies the idea of the factory of the future, which is a sound and interesting one. Having brought the factory system to something like perfection, Mr. Ford wants to temper the misery of shop work by reducing hours and by dividing the labor of each man between the field and the factory.

It's "Forced Labor"

He knows that power can be distributed and that shops need not be in cities; he knows that, due in part to his own efforts, men can go 15 miles to a factory in half an hour, and he knows that machinery can be made to make farms profitable. The idea of half time in the shop and half on the land attracts him; it is a more humane ideal than full time in the shop and the rest hours in the slums.

"If our agricultural plans are adopted throughout the country, such a thing as the dole system need never be thought of," says Mr. Ford. He prefers self-help to unemployment insurance. Insurance and the dole are, of course, "un-American."

And Mr. Ford would probably be shocked to hear that his farming plan is forced labor—Russian Communism with a dash of Fascism—and not quite as American as the one-hoss shays and wayside inns which he collects. Perhaps Mr. Ford believes that the United States has changed in several respects since 1790 and that in the present complication of interests the old individualism is not good enough. The question is whether he has ceased to believe that America means opportunity, not compulsion.

Mid-Summer

My permanent wave is beginning to wane,
My bathing suit looks rather sad;
The sunburn has peeled from the back of my neck—
Oh, boy, what a sunburn I had!

My organdie dresses are rather passe,
My chiffons support the dye cleaner;
My shoes have been whitened too often by far—
My bank account weekly grows leaner!

—Margaret E. Kangaley.

Yearning

Oft in the morn as I arise
And gaze upon the eastern skies
Where dawn demurely flirts,
As I am dressing for the day
And suddenly, to my dismay,
I find my finger hurts.
I yearn to meet the laundryman
Who first conceived the noble plan
Of putting pins in shirts

Other Men's Ideas

From "Modern Civilization on Trial," by Delisle Burns, Macmillan.

"The telephone makes it much easier for the younger generation to be in intimate contact. It may even affect sexual relations. Nowadays a young man can arrange a meeting with a girl at any moment; and the motor gives new opportunities to keep the appointment.

"In the old days the impulse might pass before the means to indulge it were available. But is it a reasonable ground for the abolition of telephones and motor cars, if they endanger the traditional morality?

"Another example—any cinema has an audience, part of which consists of young men and girls who go to 'the pictures' partly in order to sit together, who enjoy the love scenes, which are much too many and too long for the more mature.

"There may be strange effects of the cinema upon the relations of the sexes, but is that a reasonable ground for setting up a censorship of old gentlemen who have had their own love scenes long ago?"

"In view of conditions, I am voluntarily taking ten per cent off my salary and yours, too—can I count on your co-operation?"

Off the Press

By Idwal Jones

NORDIC VISITORS to the cinema in Latin countries have often been distressed by what seems to them to be a violation of the most sacred canons of the drama. There is the black-avised female, an ultra-brunette, with jet brows, soruga, and all the stigmata of the she-villan. Then there is the honey-blonde who looks as innocent as a lollypop. Enter the police, with sabers and handcuffs, and who gets hauled to the Bastile? Toujours la blonde.

I have often been harrowed by the unnaturalness of it. It is ungallant, for I esteem many brunettes who possess moral attributes as pure as the driven snow, and are very charming. As well as some blondes who are the reverse. Also ladies who have had experience in both capacities

Personally I prefer a reasonably vicious dark lady to the gooey, moon-faced blonde usually hurled at me from the screen. And so do the Latins, being reasonable people, taken by and large. And they resent the imposition upon them of the blonde as the ideal. Hence their revolt.

The tide began four years ago. I put it down frankly as a reaction against a Swedish motion picture actress who, when she dawned upon our screen, was hailed as a genius. Critics bound ice-cakes on their necks when they penned her charms.

Her countenance was rather flat, with nude brow and ears, abandoned, of high provocative power, and yet not mobile. At once the fluffy, the soubrette and the moon-faced type became as extinct as the mesozoic fish.

Granted, the way was a little prepared for her by Jeanne Eagels. And Marlene Dietrich came in on the wave, but to Greta Garbo must go the laurels for ridding the world of the tyranny of a beauty form that had long palled on it.

Even the Latins were overwhelmed by her cool yet alluring and aphrodisiac power. She was, I imagine, too much for them, for she flattened the brunettes completely. Miss Garbo was the last straw. Forthwith the embattled brunette rose in her wrath. The most widely read book in Spain and Italy in 1927 was a biography of Bebe Daniels, which sold almost half a million copies.

I have much more respect for the histrionic skill of the fair Swedoise. Rilla P. Palmborg's "The Private Life of Greta Garbo" (Doubleday, Doran, $1.75), which professes to tell "how she got that way," I read with some interest

It doesn't quite tell that, and revamps only what fans knew all along. But since fans are as insatiably curious as the Elephant's Child, it will be read by thousands of my fellow-Nordics with throbs and enthusiasm. Let us, however, be broad-minded. Brunettes, also, are God's creatures, and there are two million of them we have to live with.

Nonsense Marriages

By Mary Borden

SOME people prefer nonsense to commonsense. Some nations would rather be romantic than sensible. The attitude of the Anglo-Saxon toward marriage is a case in point. It is nonsensical, illogical, romantic, impractical, idealistic and frivolous'

It is time that we took marriage seriously, as the French do, and the Chinese and the Turks. No sane man would put his capital into a business and enter into a partnership with another because he liked the color of the other man's eyes. The gambler who, in a moment of excitement, stakes his entire fortune on the turn of a card, is rightly considered a fool, but we seem to think it not only wise but noble to risk our lives in a moment of delirium, and we say that this delirium, which we call love, is a satisfactory basis upon which to found a life partnership.

We base our belief on things we know do not exist, on the durability of passion that cannot endure, on the stability of human emotions that are as volatile as gas, on the eternal charm of youth that vanishes with the years. Our romantic young men say, "She is lovely," and our romantic young women say, "He is so handsome! I could never grow tired of him" and they both say, "We shall want to be together forever because we like to kiss now."

When Love Dies

The conception is sublime, ignorant and silly. Colossal in its egotism, it denies fact, defies experience and doesn't work. It refuses to take marriage, as an institution of the state, seriously. It refuses to admit that marriage designed for the benefit of children is an institution.

It snaps its fingers at the marriage contract, ignores the fact of children, declares that marriage should be a long honeymoon. And when, to our surprise, we find that the rapture of the honeymoon has faded, we declare that marriage should be dissolved

The statistics of the divorce court are interesting reading, but the statistics of marriage are more so. If you choose to regard marriage simply as a respectable, amorous liaison between two people, it is natural that the two in question should separate when they've grown to dislike each other

But why, I ask you, should all these thousands of disappointed egotists immediately marry again? It is the height of folly. It is highly immoral.

It's "Love Insanity!"

Their mistake is in thinking they are fit for marriage, or that they want to be married. They don't. They simply want to live together and enjoy being in love and remain respectable while they do it. But this is not marriage. Marriage is something quite different. It is as serious a business as engineering or stock-broking. Unless the two contracting parties are prepared to so consider it, they should not be allowed to marry.

It is not easy divorce that I criticize, but easy and frivolous marriage. That a young man with blue eyes and a girl with curly hair should think blue eyes and curls a basis for the founding of a family, and should be encouraged by their elders to think so, appears to me to be lunacy. In fact, almost everything that a girl is taught about marriage by her mother seems to me quite idiotic.

She is taught, to begin with, that to get married is her chief object in life, but, secondly, that she must not be sensible about it. To be sensible is sordid.

She must wait, dreaming her girlish dreams, till the right man comes along. Not the suitable man chosen by her parents, but the Fairy Prince with blue eyes, whom she will recognize instantly by the thumping of her heart as the man of her dreams.

She must believe in the dream and trust in the heart thumps. The sacrifice of her lovely, virginal self for anything less romantic would be horrible, whereas, if she marries the man of her dreams, her marriage will have been made in heaven and life will be for her a long, beautiful love story

A marriage should not be a "party." It should be, for the religious minded, a church ceremony as solemn as communion; for the civil minded, simply the signing of a binding contract

They should, in fact, pass a test at least as strict as that imposed by the immigration authorities, and should be obliged to answer the questions of a state examination paper before they are given a marriage certificate.

'THIRD DEGREE' PROBE MAY BE NATIONWIDE

Washington, Aug. 27 (INS)—An investigation on which may assume national importance was opened today by the Department of Justice as expert operatives began a searching inquiry into amazing tales of brutality by the police in the national capital.

The expose of the alleged methods used here, following charges upon the heels of the report of the Wickersham Law Enforcement Commission condemning "third degree" methods in many cities and its demand for "lawful enforcement of the law," was accepted as a challenge by the administration.

President Hoover, who arranged the conference out of which grew the iquiryn of the Justice Department, was said to be keenly interested because of his efforts to make Washington a "model city."

In the face of great opposition President Hoover named Maj-Gen Herbert B. Crosby, former cavalry chief, as district commissioner in charge of police.

The appointment was defended on the ground that the President hoped that Gen. Crosby would bring to the job the experience and ability to make the national capital one of the best policed cities in the country.

The story of a merciless beating by policemen in a local station house, told by James Henry Harker, was followed by stories unfolded by others, who said they also had suffered at the hands of district policeme.

RAIL HEAD FOR 3 P. C. BEER

Chicago, Aug 27—Legalization of 3 per cent beer will afford an important aid in the solution of America's present difficulties, in the opinion of P. H. Joyce, acting president of the Chicago & North Western Railway and president of the Standard Steel Car Company

Joyce said in a statement made public today that the country is faced with two vital problems—getting the farmers out of their difficulties and relieving the growing discontent among the working classes.

"Reopen the breweries," he said. "Give us 3 per cent beer, satisfy the workingman. Let the family join in listening again to innocent music in the old-fashioned beer garden and take the edge off the present desire for hard liquor, which is being answered with poisonous concoctions by the millionaire bootlegger.

"Let us put a million people to work. Above everything, let us convert a useless expenditure of $300,000,000 of public money into a revenue income of $700,000,000 and the American government will find a billion-dollar difference in its annual balance."

U.S. Prisoners in Cuba Called Rum Runners

Havana, Aug. 27 (AP)—The American Embassy was advised today that four Americans arrested at Camaguey and brought here on suspicion of having been connected with the rebel expeditionary force defeated at Gibara last week have records as international rum runners.

It was reported on good authority that they probably would be deported.

PIZZICATO

Boy, oh boy . . . Did I get myself in bad with the gals? . . . And all on what? . . . Just because I said there's a day or so ago that blondes annoyed me . . . Well, they do . . . Now I ask you, is there any harm in that? . . . It's just like saying I don't like spinach . . . and it's . . .

But did these fair-haired dames see it that way? . . . THEY DID NOT! . . . I'll bet the ink wasn't dry on the editions that carried that crack of mine before they started to swoop down on me like a pack of hungry wolves . . . Letters, letters, letters . . . And every one of them calling me everything and anything they can lay their hands on . . . The general complaint seems to be that I have neglected to differentiate between dyed blondes and the peroxide variety . . . Heck, how am I supposed to tell? . . . To me a blonde is a blonde and I wouldn't be able to tell you whether she was born that way or acquired it when she grew up and should have known better . . . I still maintain that I prefer brunettes to blondes . . . But still say that my eye is captured more quickly by brunette beauty than by the blonde variety . . . And you'll notice, please, girls that I'm not denying that there are blonde beauties . . . No indeed . . . All I say is that I have found greater beauty more intelligence and better senses of humor in brunettes than I have in blondes . . . That's my story and if it be treason, why make the most of it.

INDIA IS NEEDED BY JAPAN FOR TRADE MART

Williamstown, Aug 27 (AP)—The importance of India as a trade market for Japanese goods was emphasized today by Yusuke Tsurumi, former member of the Japanese Diet. He told members of the Institute of Politics that India is Japan's third largest market.

In the general conference on Indian nationalism the Japanese representative said Japan's chief interest in India is commercial. No Japanese policies toward India will be formulated until there are more definite developments in the situation, he declared.

On the question as to whether there would be racial conflict in India as a consequence of any British withdrawal, Prof. Hartley W. Cross, of Springfield College, and Srinivas Ram Wagdi of New York, Indian economist, took issue. Prof Cross said Great Britain, through loss of trade and commerce, runs a large risk by giving dominion status to India, but that India's risk is much greater, because withdrawal would be followed by internal warfare

TAMMANY AND ROOSEVELT IN NEAR-TRUCE

Albany, N. Y., Aug 27 (AP)—A cornered Tammany Hall faced with defection in its own ranks was hoping today for peace with Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Well-informed Democrats here a the Governor will give Tammany the opportunity to heal the much-discussed "breach" between them. He is expected to send to the special session of the legislature Monday a special message that will give Tammany the chance it has sought to extend the New York City investigation to upstate Republican-controlled communities.

SPLIT IN TAMMANY

Insurgency was believed to have added to Tammany's desire for peace. A Bronx senator, William Lathrop Love, hoisted the standard of the upper Harlem Democrats when the majority voted to oppose the immunity bill. In the Assembly, Democratic assurances of a four-hour meeting without action reached an agreement. It was understood four possible ex-opposed the plan to fight the bill.

Disagreement between the governor and Tammany arose from a stand that the Democratic legislative majority had the right, if it felt it necessary, to investigate Tammany's administration of New York city. The first word from Roosevelt refused to give Tammany so much as an opportunity to bring bef to the special session it's demand for an up-to-date inquiry.

MACDONALD SHOWS HIS GREATNESS AS AGE SAVES AN EMPIRE

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

EVEN AN AMERICAN, it seems to me, must have read Ramsay MacDonald's radio speech with appreciation and even with emotion. The impression it made upon the hearts and minds of his people must have been enormous. To anyone at all familiar with English history and the present situation, the speech stands out as one of the great utterances of our day, in the best tradition of statesmanship, and beautifully phrased so that the humblest need have no misunderstanding of what it is all about.

That stern and beautiful simplicity of the phrasing, indeed, was the first thing that struck one. It was plain and colloquial, a quality of speech which the English manage with conspicuous success, but it was also dignified and self-respecting.

American speech-making tends to go to one or the other extreme. If it is colloquial, it only too often falls to the level of the corrupt, the slangy and the ungrammatical. If it is formal, there is an unfortunate tradition in the utterances of our public men which makes them imitate, colorlessly and without power, the somewhat pompous, stuffed-shirt phrasing of before the Civil War.

Country Comes First

Roosevelt used words in a rough and ready but memorable fashion. Wilson was a great phrase-maker in a fine tradition of eloquent simplicity. But in the prose style of Harding, Coolidge and Hoover there has been little memorable. All is "official," formal, padded, old-fashioned, second-hand phrasing.

The plain, man-to-man, yet dignified defense of Ramsay MacDonald is a very memorable thing. Once more, as has so frequently happened in English history, the plain words clothed a plain principle. The principle is that when it comes to a crisis, politics is forgotten and country comes first. The individual political career is forgotten and the politician becomes the statesman, even at the cost of a career. So MacDonald and Snowden, like Gladstone and Peel, have sacrificed party to principle.

One may prophesy that the men who sacrificed class to country will take their places in the memorial shrines which England reserves for those whom she at last recognizes as her real patriots. Those who are trying to sacrifice country to class, to the unions and the dole, will be forgotten.

MacDonald and Snowden have nobly carried out the English political tradition, that politics is less a career than a service. It was the old English belief that government should be in the hands of gentlemen, because they were free from the necessity of earning a living by politics. Since 1870, when Labor was first represented in Parliament, representatives of the working class have grown more numerous and influential, up to the time when MacDonald formed the first Labor cabinet.

'Old Hickory' Changed It Here

In that process we have seen a great miracle. We have seen the tradition of the gentleman make gentlemen out of the Labor party politicians. We have seen a long and splendid list: John Burns, Keir Hardie, Thomas Henderson, Snowden, MacDonald, who, in the Mother of Parliaments, put the common good before party advantage and carried on in the best tradition of service for the public good.

In America a hundred years ago Andrew Jackson drove out the Federalists, whose tradition was the English tradition, and put the democracy in the saddle with the slogan, "To the victors belong the spoils." Since then our American politics has fallen far in dignity, unselfishness, competence and common honesty from the standards set up by the Fathers.

The English tradition has raised the common man to a very high level of political unselfishness and statesmanship. The American tradition has only too often lowered our political dignity and intelligence to the level of the unimproved common man. And where the crowd has the most direct political influence, there our politics is most a money-making career, ignoble, often incompetent, and nearly always undignified.

A third point occurs to me in looking over the list of the new three-party cabinet, pledged to save the nation's credit at whatever cost to the individual career. MacDonald and Snowden are nearly seventy. Most of the others are in their sixties or late fifties. It is not a young man's cabinet. The young men have not been asked to save the nation. Even that elderly adolescent, Winston Churchill, is out of it.

Yet one has a certain confidence in that cabinet, which one composed of young, eager, fire-eating young men on the make could never arouse. The thought makes one pause.

Depression Due to Youth?

The decade since the end of the War has been the decade of the young man in business. Not only in America, but in Europe, too, the young men have seized the reins and pushed ahead with noisy and grandiose schemes. Particularly in America have we been at the mercy of young men, who have scrambled and kicked and gouged and booted their way up to the high places in business and industry, and, once there, have proceeded to cut loose. They have gone on the assumption that the lessons of the past were worthless, that old men were dead wood, that there was no limit to the possible expansion of organization and expenditure and production, no limit to the creation of top-heavy mergers, no limit to fantastic stock gambling and its imaginary profits.

It is not impossible that the young men, who blamed the old men for the War, are themselves to be blamed for the Depression.

And now the elder men have had to take hold to save us all. Men like Mellon and Stimson, like MacDonald and Snowden and Baldwin. Our young business men have been pouring oil on the fire of panic by insisting that business must go on as usual, that markets must be found for over-production, that we must all spend. And now the elder statesmen are pouring cold water on the fire. The cold water of economy, retrenchment, sacrifice, prudence, the sober recognition that our future world cannot be run on the economic principles of the past decade. Once more the cold plunge is England's recipe for health.

RECORD RAIN CAUSES HALT IN TRAFFIC

1.32 Inches of Water Fall in Five Hours; Sewers Are Clogged by Flood

[illegible] deluged on [illegible] Boston today when a heavy [illegible] rear of the [illegible] yellow dust some 30 years back, bolted out what otherwise would have been full day light.

As if to [illegible] the weather bureau, whose worried prognostications declared that the storm might last for hours, the storm cleared up, temporarily at least, shortly before noon, having given forth a precipitation of 1.32 inches from 6 A. M. to 11:05 A. M.

LIKE A DELUGE

The Weather Bureau persisted [illegible] it could be forecast as

"Mostly cloudy, with probable occasional showers tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; moderate easterly winds."

Through a freak of weather [illegible] and the territory adjacent [illegible] the dark shadow for part an hour rain poured in [illegible] and flooding streets and cellars in the greater city.

Lights were switched on in offices, automobile headlights [illegible] and hurrying pedestrians dodged the downpour though for a moment it was evening.

BUSES SEEK HAVEN

Lightning zigzagged from [illegible] was but rain and floods were [illegible] deadly near, making it necessary for automobile traffic to detour in some sections, for emergency crews to go to work on catch basins and for trains to run slowly through flooded bridge underpasses.

In the Fellsway, at the Malden-Medford line, the water was so deep for half an hour that buses, searching for safe spots in which to land passengers, were forced sometimes to drive into backyards and there deposit them. The passengers pick [illegible] their way to destinations over higher land.

Medford [illegible] in Medford was flooded so deep that traffic was detoured and passengers were forced to [illegible] streets to the higher ground in order to get through town.

There [illegible] was another flooded spot, where the bridge underpass [illegible] feet deep, which slowed up Boston & Maine trains, lest the engines suffer flooded fireboxes.

A similar situation held in Malden on the main automobile road from Highland ave. to the railroad tracks, over which course automobiles crept cautiously and in fear of washing out engine bearings or soaking the ignition systems.

$56,000 in Street Contracts Awarded

Contracts calling for the expenditure of more than $56,000 for street construction were awarded by Mayor Curley today.

Appel & O'Toole Co., were the lowest bidders for paving of Sanborn ave., Tarleton and Welland streets, Roxbury. Their bid was $34,350. G. Frangioso Co. were awarded a contract for paving of Preston and Lee Hill roads, West Roxbury, at a cost of $12,820, and Marinucci Bros. were the lowest bidders for similar construction in Woodstock ave., Brighton. Their bid was $9841.

Laborer Is Killed by Express at Quincy

Walter Drohan, 42, of Federal st Quincy, was instantly killed today by the Hingham express, Boston bound, at a point between Quincy and Quincy Adams stations.

Drohan's body was hurled 150 feet. Identification was made by his brother, Joseph Drohan and two other men were walking in tracks as a short cut.

LUNCH—Spinach [illegible] one egg with [illegible] and small [illegible] of butter.....150 calories
1 Saltine crackers.....30 calories
Hot tea with cream, no sugar
1 apple.....100 calories
DINNER—Cream of asparagus soup (½ cup).....100 calories
Small serving of broiled mackerel.....100 calories
1 cup stewed tomatoes.....50 calories
Medium serving broccoli.....25 calories
Lettuce salad with sliced cucumber and 1 tbsp. French dressing.....175 calories
Small piece apple pie.....100 calories
Iced tea (lemon—no sugar) or iced coffee (without milk and sugar)

8th Day's Menu Tomorrow

If the weight and exercise tables show that you need more than 1,200 calories make up the difference from the foods named in the menu, beginning with an extra glass of milk—100 calories.

(To obtain back numbers send 3 cents to circulation department, Boston American.)

WOMEN Height Feet	Inches	Weight Pounds	MEN Height Feet	Inches	Weight Pounds
4	10	118	5	3	133
4	11	118	5	4	138
5	—	120	5	5	140
5	1	122	5	6	144
5	2	124	5	7	148
5	3	127	5	8	152
5	4	130	5	9	156
5	5	134	5	10	161
5	6	138	5	11	166
5	7	142	6	—	172
5	8	146	6	1	178
5	9	150	6	2	184
5	10	154	6	3	190

Consult table for your normal weight. Multiply that by 15 if you take no exercise.

17 if you take light exercise
19 if you take moderate exercise
22 if you do muscular labor.
25 if you do severe labor.

You then have the number of calories for your daily food requirements if you were not overweight.

From this number subtract 1000 calories—and you have your proper reducing diet. A safe reducing diet provides for you to use 1000 calories a day for the fat stored in your body.

2 'TAMPERERS' SENT TO JAIL

Two men accused of discussing a witness from testifying were sentenced to one year each in the House of Correction in Municipal Court today, and a third charged with the same offense was held over until tomorrow.

The two sentenced are Joseph Foti, of Tiberius st., Roxbury, and James Demoni, of Leverett st., West End. Both appealed and were held in $2000 each for Superior court.

The third man, who gave his name as Paul V. Mayo, was held for a continuance after police learned his real identity was Charles Giacobbe, of East Lenox st., Roxbury, and that he had a long record.

Michael Belandi, of Cambridge st., Boston, testified all three had attempted to prevent him from identifying three men who it is alleged stabbed him in a brawl.

The cases of Alexandra Siciliano, John Interbartol and Joseph McPhee charged with assault with intent to kill Belandi, are now pending.

Overheated Boiler Starts South End Fire

Fire said to have been caused by an overheated boiler broke out in the one-story building occupied by the Central Construction Co. 220 Southampton st., South End early today, causing damage of $5000.

Research Vessel Here Puzzles Customs

The motor yacht Atlantis, built in Copenhagen for Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, presented a new problem for customs officials when it anchored off City Point to be cleared.

The boat is neither a private yacht nor a commercial vessel. It has its own classification which was not to be found on the printed forms of customs inspectors. It is a research vessel built for the sole purpose of exploring the recesses of the sea.

The men aboard will study the depths and floor of the sea by means of various scientific devices. Much new information will be brought to light, as very little work of this sort has been done.

"In exploring the recesses of the deep sea our scientists are taking over an unchartered area," said F. L. Higginson, Jr., third mate of the Atlantis and a native of Boston.

NEW CONTINENT

"Like other sorts of exploration, it is not known of what practical value the new information will be. It is like exploring a new continent. Something of practical value may be found, or the only results may be data that is useful just for scientific study."

The undersea studies were started on the way to Boston, between Copenhagen and Plymouth, Eng. and from Plymouth here. Probes were made to a depth of 12,000 feet. The work will be continued in the North Atlantic for several years.

Three principal means are employed for obtaining the desired information. Nets are lowered to various depths to obtain samples of plant and animal life. Light intensity machines are lowered to measure the amount of light. Water bottles that will open at a given depth are sent down to determine the temperature and oxygen content of water in various places.

FOUR SCIENTISTS

Capt. C. O. Iselin, famous Newport yachtsman, is the captain and chief scientist of the Atlantis. Four other scientists working with him are Dr. F. Zorell of Seewarte, Hamburg Oceanographic Institute, chief hydrographer; R. B. Montgomery, assistant; Bartlett Hayes, Jr., assistant, and George L. Clarke, chief biologist. The yacht has a crew of 17.

It is expected that the information obtained will be of value to fishermen and navigators.

Results of findings on the maiden voyage to Boston are not known. Fish and sea life brought up by nets were pickled and sent to Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, where they will be studied. New forms of sea life may be found among them.

134,000 HEED SCHOOL BELL

Approximately 134,000 pupils are expected to attend the Boston public schools when they open next month, according to the estimates at the school department offices.

The figure will exceed by 2000 the enrollment of last year. For the opening there will be six new buildings and additions, calculated to take care of 3700 pupils.

The estimated enrollment figures show that there will be 80,000 children in the elementary schools of grades running one to eight. In the high and Latin schools there will be 28,000. The rest of the total enrollment is made up of 600 in the Teachers College, 4500 in the ninth grade intermediate, 8300 in kindergartens and 2600 in special schools.

Moe Neuman Seized in War on Gunmen

Moe Neuman, acquitted last November of the charge of murdering Samuel Reinstein in Hotel Huntington, was arrested today in Philadelphia, one of two men taken by police in a war on racketeers and gunmen there.

The other man arrested gave his name as Joseph Kravitt. Both gave Philadelphia addresses.

ROXBURY BOY BANDIT DYING

Charles C. Ward, 19, of Howard st., Roxbury, who was shot in the back by Joseph Goldberg, Roxbury theater manager, when he attempted to escape after a holdup, was reported dying in City Hospital today. His name has been on the danger list since Monday when the bullet checked his escape, and to day his condition took a turn for the worse.

Ward, in company with Arthur P. Harrington, 18, of Silva pl., Roxbury, is alleged to have robbed Goldberg and Miss Sadie Neapman at gunpoint while the couple were parked in front of her home in Homestead st., Roxbury.

Milton Children Show Park Work

An exhibition of basket weaving, crayon and water color drawings, silhouettes and pictures formed of colored ribbons, marked the final exercises of the Milton playground season at Brook Road Field.

More than 350 children attended from the two Milton playgrounds and were given free ice cream.

LOVE FINDS A WAY

"DORIS, YOU LOVE MARTY KRAMER, DON'T YOU?"

MUSIC SWELLED up from the orchestra pit and burst into a mighty prolonged chord. Karinov and Maxine were on the stage!

The theater darkened, only the red exit lights gleamed in the blackness, and then the two were into their weird dance. A blue light suffused the stage, and two dim figures whirled and twisted in exotic motion as the trumpets blared into a sustained, shrill note. Silence. The entire audience sat entranced.

Karinov, gripping one slender wrist and one equally slender ankle in his two huge fists, was swinging the girl, Doris Maxine, in an amazing circle. Round and round. Faster and faster. The drums picked up the beat, the rhythm grew madder. Now he was swinging her in graceful, sweeping arcs, now down with a low dip till her fringed costume swept the ground, then up. Dangerous, but beautiful!

The audience sprang to life as the huge chandelier once more glowed with light. Applause shook the house with brava.

After the act Doris sat in her dressing room slowly rubbing cold cream into her face and talking to Helene Elliot, who ran the trained dog act in the opening spot.

"Doris, you love Marty Kramer, don't you?" queried Helene.

"Helene, I love him more than anything in this world, and if it weren't for my contract keeping me from marrying for three years, I'd marry Marty tomorrow. He's making a fine living now. He's leader of the orchestra in this theater and—"

"Yes you can see that, Doris," interrupted Helene. "Why, tonight he missed Karinov's entrance cue. That's the third time and he doesn't stop it but I saw the house manager put down on his neck. You know, an orchestra leader isn't supposed to miss cues."

"Oh, I know, I know," said Doris, a trifle sadly, "but he does it purposely. He hates Karinov like poison because Karinov won't let me break the contract to get married. Marty thinks Karinov is in love with me, that's why he won't let me go. But I'm desperate, Helene, I'd do almost anything to get away from all this. I'd like a little home with Marty, no worrying about keeping in the spot or keeping limber by touching my head with my foot ten times before each performance. Oh! I tell you, Helene, I'm disgusted. And Karinov is all to blame."

"Bad as all that, huh," sympathized Helene, "well, I gotta meet Jack, honey, so I'll toddle along. And don't worry. Everything will come out all right."

"It had better," said Doris, staring at the floor.

Karinov and Maxine were drawing huge crowds. Karinov could not be blamed entirely for not allowing Doris to cancel her contract and break up the successful team.

They had three more years to go on that contract, he thought, and what a fortune could be gleaned in that time. Wait, if Doris did want to marry, she couldn't, he had her there all right.

He felt sure of her as he took a firm hold on her ankle and wrist.

They were whirling now . . . slowly . . . and the incessant sound of a drum rolled like the droning of a bee into Doris' buzzing ears . . . Her head became light . . . She caught a glimpse of Marty leaning on his stand, his baton motionless, then his face was gone . . . now she saw the velvet backdrop . . . then she whizzed past again . . . then Marty's face . . . then the backdrop . . . then Marty's face . . . then the back drop . . .

With a cry she wrenched herself clear of Karinov's grip, her ankle leave his clenching fingers. She was flying through space. With a thud she hit the velvet drop concealing a brick wall and like a wounded doe dropped to the ground . . .

The audience rose. Cries of Doctor! Ambulance! Police! filled the air till the ushers finally quieted the audience and Doris was carried off the stage.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Karinov," said the doctor, "but she will never dance again. She will be able to walk, yes, but her legs will never sustain the strain of professional dancing. It really is too bad, she is a beautiful girl and a thrilling entertainer."

"Why did you do it, sweetheart; why, tell me why?" pleaded Marty.

"Marty, dear, do you know I'll never be able to dance again. That as far as dancing goes I'm through, and——"

"Do you mean . . . do you mean . . . Doris! The contract, is it broken now? That we can be married." The utmost joy was written on Marty's face as he realized.

"Yes, dear, it does," said Doris.

"But at what a sacrifice," cried Marty.

CITY COUNCILLORS URGE RADIO FOR POLICE

M'GRATH AND 3 OTHERS BACK RUBY ORDER

Demand for Short-Wave System to Be Acted Upon Next Monday

Use of short-wave radio by the Boston police department for speedy capture of criminals was urged today by President Joseph McGrath of the City Council and Councillors Leo F. Power of Roxbury, Edward L. Englert of Jamaica Plain and Timothy Donovan of East Boston.

These four members pledged their support at a meeting of the council meeting in Councillor Ruby E. Ely's order calling on the police commissioner to take steps toward the installation of a broadcasting system.

Councillor McGrath said:

"This move is the most constructive along law enforcement lines in this city in recent years. It is worthy of the support of every citizen.

"The present-day gangster is so well equipped that he has the most modern weapon that it is possible to buy. Gangsters are even importing high-powered automatic weapons these days.

RUM RUNNERS HAVE THEM

"If the criminal is so well equipped, why does organized government deny itself the latest inventions for combatting the violator of the law?

"Six months ago it was discovered that a radio station operated by rum runners was located right here in Massachusetts. In Chicago it was found recently that criminals had a device for tapping all telephone wires.

"The gangster doesn't hesitate to use the most modern equipment in his rebellion against the established order. Why should the Boston police department, maintaining that order, deny itself the same equipment?"

Councillor T. F. Donovan said:

"I am one of those who favor the use of the radio by the Boston police department. Any movement to bring this about will receive my endorsement.

"The criminal element in the United States seems to be growing more daring with each succeeding year. Every city in the nation has its stories of dangerous criminals bringing sudden and violent death to innocent men, women and children.

PRAISE FOR POLICE

"The officers and men of the Boston police department are as fine in every respect as any to be found anywhere in the United States. Their courage, intelligence and ability never have been questioned.

"Give them the equipment to work with. It must be said to their credit that, considering the handicaps under which they labor, they get surprising results. Equip them with the radio and they will soon have the situation well in hand."

Councillor Englert said:

"The time has come when old-fashioned police methods must be discarded and local police authorities must realize they must follow the lead of other communities and use the radio in suppressing crime.

"Cold-blooded murders have become so common as to be regarded as a daily news event in some communities small shopkeepers no longer stay open after darkness.

ONLY SOLUTION

"Something must be done to correct this situation. The use of the radio seems to be the only solution of the problem.

"I trust that the time will soon come when every police vehicle in Boston will be equipped with receiving sets and a broadcasting station installed at police headquarters."

Councillor Power said:

"The police should employ every method that will protect the lives and safety of the people of Boston.

"As a member of the Boston City Council, and one who has the best interests of the entire community at heart, I shall support every move to bring the radio into use in the detection and apprehension of criminals."

JOHN A. MOREHEAD CLINGS TO HIS OVERTURNED BOAT

A very lucky yachtsman was saved by a speedy coast guard crew yesterday. Another case of a Boston Evening American photographer being on the job. John A. Morehead of Belmont was trying out his new 15-foot skiff near City Point. Something went wrong. The boat overturned. In the picture at the left you can't even see the large sail.

THE UNLUCKY BOAT GOES BACK TO LAND

In just a jiffy this photograph was made. Why? G. Frank Radway, Boston Evening American staff photographer was aboard the life-saving boat, on his way to a "job." And in just another jiffy Morehead was safe in a coast guard boat. Over at the right you see coast guardsmen pulling the overturned sailboat to shore and safety. (Staff photos.)

Hearing Date Set on Transportation

The first of a series of public hearings by the special state commission appointed by the 1931 Legislature to investigate regulating the business of transporting certain property for hire by motor vehicle will be held Wednesday, Sept. 2, at 10:30 a. m., in room 370, State House.

The study involves freight transportation by buses, trucks and railroads.

16 NEW CASES ARE REPORTED FOR DAY

Former Victims of the Disease End Outings to Provide for Supply of Serum

Former sufferers from infantile paralysis have returned from vacations to donate their blood in clinics preparing serum to fight in clinics preparing serum to fight the spread of the disease, according to Dr. Gaylord W. Anderson of the State Department of Public Health.

"The response of donors to appeals for blood has been magnificent," said Dr. Anderson today. "In several cases persons who have been cured of the disease have cancelled their vacations to come to the aid of the newly stricken.

16 NEW CASES

A total of 16 cases was reported to the public health department today. These include two cases each from Boston and Easton and one each from Cambridge, Somerville, Reading, Holyoke, Attleboro, Beverly, Topsfield, Springfield, Templeton, Falmouth, Fall Hampton and Andover.

In Haynes Memorial Hospital Dr. C. A. Towell, assistant superintendent, reported there were 22 cases under treatment, three of them admitted within the last three days.

FEW DEATHS

Although no deaths have occurred there in the last two days, constant attention is being directed toward warding off the fatalities likely to result from the disease.

The death last week of one of two adults stricken added another tally to the toll.

The death of one child in Children's Hospital yesterday among 25 cases under treatment there was reported. According to hospital officials however there has been a decrease in the number of new cases and a falling off in the number of fatal cases.

R. I. in Plea for Blood as Plight Grows Acute

Providence, R. I., Aug. 27 (AP)—An appeal for volunteers, former sufferers from infantile paralysis, to donate blood to make serum was made today by Providence city hospital officials.

"The situation is acute and we need blood for serum," said Dr. Ralel A. Gregory, assistant superintendent of the institution.

Four new cases were reported today.

THERE WERE THREE WOMEN IN THE LIFE OF THIS BOY—

This Boy

Who loved neither wisely nor well,
Who reached after romance with greedy hands,
Who judged the world by surface values,
Who took what he wanted — and found that wasn't enough . . .

THE WRONG WOMAN WAS ROBERTA ALDEN

Who loved with complete abandon of self,
Who gave without counting the cost,
Who was so young, and so simple, and so—inexperienced . . .

Was it her fault that her love stood for rooming houses, and furtive kisses, secret meetings, and poverty?

THE RIGHT WOMAN WAS SONDRA FINCHLEY

Sondra who was moonlight and gold, Who was the scent of gardenias, Who was dance music, And satin, And high powered cars . . . Sondra who was illusion, And splendor!

It was worth doing anything to win her.

THE THIRD WOMAN WAS HIS MOTHER

Who was the first, And the last—Who gave him the gift of life, But who, though loving him, Could not give him luxury, Or beauty, Or a fine soul, Or even high ideals . . .

But—at the end—she gave him a greater gift—She gave him the courage he lacked.

MEN LIKE THEIR DRINKS AND THEIR WOMEN COLD

By HELEN ROWLAND

The White Man's Burden is woman's starving soul! Woman's insatiable demand for sentimental exhibitions! Woman's hungry heart! Woman's unquenchable vanity!

Woman's everlasting eternal, devouring, suffocating sentimentalism!

That is why a man, four times out of five, falls in love with a woman who doesn't take him seriously.

As long as a woman loves a man, even a little bit, she slops over with sentiment, like a soda fountain with sweet things.

As long as a woman loves a man, she demands, imagines, gushes, suspects, accuses, hopes, fears, pouts, poses—and SUFFERS!

Nothing so annoys a man as woman in a sternal sentimentalism.

He simply CANNOT see why she expects him to write her six-page letters, when he can compress his whole passion into a ten-word telegram, or say it with postcards.

He can't understand why she expects him to remember anniversaries and other things—like the color of her eyes, on the first time he kissed her.

Nor why she requires him to think up pretty things to say, and new ways of telling her that he loves her, when he's proved it by asking her to marry him—and "why say anything more about it?"

* * *

But, the woman who doesn't take him seriously is an angel of consideration and a paragon of common sense.

She accepts his apology with perfect good-nature, and doesn't even notice that he hasn't been around for a week. She is always cheery and pleased to see him, and doesn't remember that he forgot to telephone her.

* * *

She is SO comforting!

And so, in the end, he marries "the woman who doesn't care"—and wonders why marriage is so dull and prosaic and deadly monotonous.

* * *

Fanchon Is to Enter Society

"DID YOU sleep well, Miss Evelyn?" the maid asked.

"Thank you, Emma, I did indeed," said Fanchon.

"It's a lovely day and quite cool," Emma told her. "I'll run the water for your tub and by the time you are ready your tray will be here."

"Mrs. Carstairs?" Fanchon asked, getting out of bed.

"She has been up a long time. She will come in with you while you are breakfasting," Emma told her.

"Almost twelve, Miss Evelyn."

"My watch," Fanchon said, idly stopped when I had the accident."

"I see," said Emma, and added It was—terrible, I never saw Mrs. Carstairs so upset."

Some time later as Fanchon sipped her ice cold melon and her hot, crisp toast, eggs and coffee, Jennie Carstairs came in. She wore a cool suit of black pique with a frilly white blouse and looked entirely lovely.

Coming over to kiss Fanchon, "Did you have a good night?" she wanted to know . . . "You did? That's splendid! Now, if you want to get up and spend the day out on the terrace, Doctor Wynne thinks it will be all right. Tomorrow I will have some people come in and fit you to a few essentials and then we will see if the next day we can't motor down to Southampton."

My trunk—" began Fanchon, recalling her role.

You sent it to Southampton, didn't you? And besides you will need quite different things you wrote me you had, practically things for the shool, Mrs. Carstairs told her Fanchon was silent.

The rest of the day she lazed out in a big chair on the terrace. Mrs. Carstairs was with her most of the time. When she was not, there were books and magazines to read and the wide expanse of city flowers, trees, sky and blue water to watch and wonder at. When Her 'aunt' was with her they talked as people do who understand one another yet who have not met for years. Mrs. Carstairs asked her about Hawaii and Fanchon sighing with relief, was able to tell her much about the Islands. As much as she dared, fearing to tell too much, for, after all, she had spent twenty years there to Evelyn's two.

In return Jennie Carstairs spoke of her place in England

"I didn't sell it," she confessed, "it has been let to American friends. Well go there some day And to France too." In France, it seemed she maintained a Paris apartment and a small chateau out of town. "But I want you to have a summer here and a New York season first," she explained

Twice or three times she spoke of Collin. Always with that flush and the hesitant expression, always breaking off in, as it were, mid air

On the following day, fitters and saleswomen came from the shops and Fanchon was measured for gowns "They'll have to be ready made for now," said Mrs Carstairs. In the afternoon the saleswomen came back with the selections Sport clothes, spectator dresses, afternoon frocks evening gowns, sweaters, bathing suits, hats and stockings and shoes and lingerie. Nothing had been forgotten. There was something of everything, all in the most perfect taste And as Fanchon had as perfect a figure as it is possible to have, it was easy to fit her. Even the soft little satin slays had not been forgotten several of them

A trunk appeared as if by magic; several trunks wardrobe, hat and shoe trunks and a matching suitcase and a small fitted overnight case, all of pigskin; all stamped in gold, "E H" and these, Emma packed for her with her new clothes

Then, they were ready to leave for the Island. Doctor Wynne having come in again and given his permission. The trip down, in the big closed car was made with ease and comfort.

The Southampton house was long and low and rambling, painted white with green shutters. It stood very near the dunes, but there was much ground about it, gardens and tennis courts Fanchon's rooms were overlooking the water, they were done in pale rose, with odd touches of turquoise blue and were very lovely. Emma, having gone down with Jameson and the trunks earlier, by train, was ready and waiting for them when they arrived and Fanchon's things were all unpacked. Despite her position and her sense of dreamlike uncertainty Fanchon would not have been a normal human girl had she not been as excited as a child. And a child with an income of her own because Mrs. Carstairs had insisted upon her attending to the bank signature before she left and drawing out some money "for pennies," Mrs. Carstairs had told her, laughing.

"You're to have pearls," she said smiling, "when you come out.. My own must go to Collin's wife, of course."

Was Collin married—or engaged? thought Fanchon

Tasty Ways to Cook Apples

By MARTHA LEE

HERE WE are with the promised apple recipes for making use of the Yellow Transparent, the red Astrachan and the Williams varieties which are with us now and the Wealthy and Maiden Blush which will soon be on the scene.

We can joke all we like about an "apple a day" but there's no denying that apples are the perfect fruit And here are the recipes firstly "different"

Martha Lee

APPLE SAUCE

6 or 8 tart apples
1 cup water
1 cup sugar

Quarter, core and pare the apples. Make a syrup of the sugar and water. When boiling, add the apples and cook a few at a time until tender, but not broken. Remove carefully. Boil down the syrup and pour over the apples. Chill. Adding pink coloring to the syrup gives a lovely blush to this sauce.

BAKED APPLES WITH ALMONDS

Pare and core six tart apples Pour over them a syrup made by boiling 1 cup sugar with 1¼ cups water 5 minutes. Let simmer, turning carefully, until tender Remove from syrup. Stick blanched almonds halfway down and all around each apple. Sprinkle with sugar, place in baking dish, pour syrup about them, place in hot oven until nuts are delicately browned Chill, and top each apple with whipped cream

Martha Lee

P S. Don't forget those crab meat recipes that you are going to enter in the contest. Drop Martha Lee a line for full particulars about the $1000 in cash prizes and where to send your recipes (Don't mail them to Martha Lee.)

She Will Make Grade, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I'm 2± years of age, average in looks, nothing outstanding ordinary personality and dress very well in order to offset the deficiency in good looks. I have just broke off with a young man with whom I went for 2½ years and I am convinced that he is not the person for me

Just how am I to act when a young man's around who is the least bit attractive to me? I have already learned that a girl should never display her heart on her sleeve, but, whenever anyone comes into sight who is halfway nice, I become tongue tied and it's an awful sensation. I forget what to talk about. I'm awkward and don't know what to say I fill in an ordinary conversational gap, and, all in all, I feel so terribly self-conscious I could just creep into the nearest keyhole, curl up, and die. What am I supposed to discuss with them?

AWKWARD

Dear Awkward: I think that the thing you complain of arises from the fact that you have devoted yourself entirely to one young man for 2½ years. Your letter is clear and shows that you can express your ideas. Your trouble is not there. A never-ending source of interest among young people is current events as they are described in the newspapers, etc. If you will believe in yourself, I feel very optimistic about your future

Steady Weight Gain Means a Healthy Baby

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

WHENEVER possible the infant should be breast fed. But it is important to discontinue this plan of feeding if it does not serve its purpose. Sometimes babies do not thrive on mother's milk

Dr. Copeland

It may be necessary to take the baby from the breast and give artificial feeding. Frequently there is lack of milk in the breast

Increase in weight is the most accurate method of determining if baby is getting sufficient nourishment If not, the infant will lose weight Continued loss of weight is serious and requires immediate attention

The infant should be weighed twice a week This procedure should be continued until it reaches one year of age and then it may be weighed once every month.

It is not important that the gain in weight be rapid, but it should be gradual and steady During the first six months there should be a weekly gain of five or six ounces. If the gain is not steady there is something wrong This may be due either to the food or to the method of feeding

If satisfactory progress is not observed, talk with the family doctor. There may be the need of a change in the bottle mixture

GRAND HOTEL

By VICKI BAUM

IN THE SEVENTH round Blynx was knocked out. He reeled, head first, fell to the padded floor, turned on his back and lay there. The 28,000 hands thundered applause, Kringelein heard himself yelling hoarsely and saw his hands clapping like mad. He was not very clear about what was going on in the ring above.

The man in the silk shirt was standing over the prostrate Blynx and making hammer-like rounds with one arm. Once Blynx made a movement as horses do when they have fallen on the ice, but he did not get up. There was a fresh outburst of applause from the hall. People climbed over the ropes. There were roarings through the megaphone, and frenzy in the gallery When Blynx had been carried out Kringelein collapsed in utter exhaustion on his hard chair. He had overtaxed himself and his shoulders and arms hurt him.

"This fight was not up to much. The main bout comes on now," he said to Kringelein.

Kringelein was glad to hear it. He thought himself that there must be more to come—the thud of heavier blows, louder panting. More, he thought. More. More. On with it! On with it!

Two gigantic forms stepped into the ring, a white man and a negro. Three minutes' fighting, one minute's breathing space, three minutes alternating with one minute 15 times for an hour long. But this time the action was faster.

Kringelein melted like wax Kringelein was cooped up no longer in his dilapidated body. Kringelein was one among 14,000, one green, distorted face among countless others, and his voice was indistinguishable in the one great roar that issued from every throat at once

In the last two rounds the negro, Kringelein's negro, seemed to be having the best of it. The last round was accompanied by an unbroken uproar and thunderous stamping. Kringelein roared and stamped, too. Then the gong and it was over. Kringelein lay back in his chair covered with sweat The megaphone announced that the white man had won

"What? What's that? Outrageous!" roared Kringelein through 14,000 throats.

He climbed on to his seat. All climbed on to their seats and roared against the decision. The hall went raving mad. Kringelein went raving mad. The gallery was in an uproar, whistling, screeching. The hall began to rain down boxes, cigarette packets, oranges and, finally, glasses and bottles. Kringelein got something very hard and heavy on the head, but he did not even feel it. Kringelein's fists were clenched Kringelein wanted to be in the thick of the fray and to beat up the referee for his decision. He looked around for Gaigern. Gaigern was in front, near the ring. He stood out alone above the rest and he was laughing. Kringelein, in his unbounded excitement, was seized by a sudden and powerful attraction to this man who stood there laughing and looking like Life itself. Gaigern grabbed hold of him and led him out of the hall—now filled by a frantic mob.

On they went in the light of the thousand lights all round. Then abruptly came the silence and darkness under the trees of the Bavarian quarter. Finally they reached the gambling club.

Men in dinner jackets moved noiselessly about. Kringelein recognized a pale, lean figure, smartly clothed in black, who was smoothing his thin hair off his forehead, as himself. It came as a surprise to encounter himself in the glass. I can really stand a good deal, he thought.

At the end of a narrow, ugly corridor they entered a smallish room. All the light was concentrated on a table in the middle, as it was on the ring in the Sportshalle. A few people were sitting and standing round the table, 12 or 14 only. They had an intent and businesslike air.

"How much do you want to stake?" asked Gaigern, who had gone aside to a desk where a lady in black, with the air of a governess, was sitting as though at a cash desk. "What did you put in?"

Kringelein had thought of 10 marks. "Stake? Now, Herr Baron," he said dubiously.

"Let's say 300 marks for a start," Gaigern proposed. Kringelein, incapable of protest, took out his old pocketbook and produced five M. 100 notes. A handful of brightly colored counters was thrust into his hand, green, blue and red

"Now stake where you like," said Gaigern. "It's no use my explaining. Stake what and where you like. Those who play for the first time usually win."

TAKE THE LOVE OUT OF TENNIS

I would not be so bold as to tell the intellectuals who boss the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association how to conduct their business, but if they were to ask me how to place tennis right out front as a major sport I would tell them to take the love out of the game.

Don't get me wrong. I don't refer to that kind of love which they reveal in spicy divorce cases, or which we sometimes get a peek at when we parade along the sands at some of our beaches. It is to the silly way they have for scoring that I take objections.

"Forty love," says the umpire, or whoever is supposed to keep track of the score at tennis matches.

If Mr. Moody, a well set-up young man, who earns his living by trying to outguess the judges in court were in the stand and didn't know his tennis, he might be justified in stepping on to the tennis court and cracking either Vines or the umpire on the chin.

I tried to interest two of my boys as spectators at a tennis match early this summer. When they heard the players talking so much love they decided it was a game only for sissies and went back to wrestling.

Tennis, as a matter of fact, is the most strenuous sport in the world with the possible exception of rowing. Gene Buckley will tell you that a four-mile rowing race is the toughest thing in the world. And I have an idea he is right.

Tennis is at least a close second to rowing. It calls for endurance, speed, agility and remarkably quick thinking. One cannot sit down and map out a defense when Helen Wills Moody, Tilden or Vines is shooting fast ones across the net.

Babe Ruth used to think that tennis was a sort of sissies' game back in 1919 when I was acting as his ghost writer for a newspaper syndicate. I suggested to Babe that he play a game of tennis with a 16-year-old girl on a court in front of the Tampa Bay Hotel at Tampa, Fla. Babe thought it was a great idea. Quite a crowd gathered to see the home-run hitter do his stuff against the youthful tennis player.

I do not believe Ruth ever looked so bad in his life as he did that day. His young opponent won in straight sets and had Ruth diving in all directions as he attempted to get in the way of terrific shots.

"Don't say love," growled Babe as somebody mentioned the score. "Say 40 to 0."

I believe that some of Eddie Mack's gallery customers would occasionally hop out to the Longwood Cricket Club to see the big matches if they would take the love out of tennis. Leave the love to the young and romantic for use, especially during the vacation season.

Ouimet Put Golf on the Front Page

I can remember when it was almost worth your life to parade along Washington or Tremont sts. with a bag of golf clubs. Golf just didn't belong. Then along came a former caddy by the name of Francis Ouimet and licked Vardon and Ray, British stars, in the United States open at The Country Club in Brookline.

When Ouimet reached the finals the whole town started talking golf. Laborers digging ditches paused to get the latest news on what the 20-year-old American youngster was doing at Brookline. They didn't know what golf was all about, probably didn't care, but they did want to be Ouimet lick the British pros. He did. In doing so he put golf on the front page.

Golfers laugh at the passing years. The other day at Woodland, Ouimet flashed the same kind of golf he displayed when he upset Vardon and Ray when he helped Jesse Guilford defeat Billy Burke and George Von Elm.

Ann's Spa to Have New Owner

I understand that Jim Purcell of Jamaica Plain is going to take over Ann's Spa. It was at Ann's Spa that Large Daniel Carroll used to place his signature on the dotted line when Jim Maloney was bowling over the opposition. Dan used to make the Spa his hangout before he started scattering the fairways around at our ritzy golf courses.

Since the so-called business depression, men about town like Large Daniel have found it quite costly to have any special spot where they can be found. Billy Lahiff, who runs the Tavern on East 48th st. in New York, and who is an uncle of Nancy Carroll, told me recently that it costs him $20 in touches every time he steps out in front of his place to get a little fresh air. Billy says he is considering borrowing a cane and a cup from a blind man as a disguise so that he won't be cuffed into the poor house.

Cafe owners complain that the touch epidemic has caused many of their best patrons to either eat at home or in out-of-the-way spots where they cannot be found by a flock of broken guys.

Ladies' Days Have Helped Baseball in Hub

I was kidnaped the other night, and when I woke up I found myself in one of those flossy tea rooms near Hyannis. Some thoughtful soul had placed a toasted sandwich and a cup of Java in front of me.

A couple of dolls were seated at the next table. Between puffs at their favorite brand of cigarettes, the girls discussed recent baseball games they had attended in Boston. They stated it was a swell idea when the baseball owners decided to permit the dolls to parade through the turnstiles on ladies' day without the annoyance of an escort. I was surprised when I found that the girls were more interested in what happened on the ball field than they were in the looks of the handsome athletes.

I understand that Bob Quinn and Judge Fuchs have many provisions at their parks to take care of children from the ages of three weeks up.

Random Shots at the Target

Art Ross, manager of the Bruins, is recovering from his recent operation at the Faulkner Hospital. He's looking forward to the time when he can play golf again with Alex Bird at the Marshfield Country Club. It is expected that Art will be moved to his summer home at Green Harbor next week.

The Marshfield Country Club, by the way, has one of the finest 18-hole golf courses in New England. I'm for it except when I slice or hook my drive into the woods coming off at the first tee.

Alex MacLean, who used to manage Jack Johnson, tells me not having seen Peter Jackson, he rates Johnson as the greatest of Negro heavyweights. Second place in the MacLean list goes to Sam McVey, with Sam Langford, Joe Jeannette and Harry Wills listed in the order named.

POSTPONEMENT HURTS SCHAAF

New York, Aug. 27—Vittorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, has been tossed around so much that he feels like a parking case. He was supposed to fight Ernie Schaaf, Boston heavyweight last night, but the weatherman upset all plans and forced a postponement until Monday.

The postponement won't do Campolo any harm. He's been idle so long that he does his training in broad lines. But Schaaf, who is as nervous as a caged tiger, may have his sharp fighting edge somewhat dulled by a five-day layoff.

Campolo has become the testing block for heavyweights. Every fighter who aspires to the heavyweight throne must meet Campolo some time in his career. The Argentinian battler might have been the champion today if he had had the proper handling.

Campolo weighed in at 223¼ yesterday against Schaaf's 207 pounds. But Ernie can give away twice that poundage and still be good. Schaaf will be a 2 to 1 favorite when he enters the ring.

Mrs. Moody Far Above Other Tennis Stars

America's women's tennis crown reposes once again where it belongs on the shapely head of Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, undisputed queen of the world of racquets.

And judging by the doings at Forest Hills during the past week the crowning of Queen Helen has ushered in another era of Moody supremacy, another stretch of years during which the great champion will again rule the feminine tennis world with an iron hand.

Certainly nothing Mrs. Eileen Bennett Whittingstall showed against the great Moody in final when she was crushed under 6-0, 6-1, scores points to the contrary.

Nor anything that Betty Nuthall or Helen Jacobs, or any of the other British or American stars exhibited during the past days either.

Other Courtwomen Far Below Helen's Class

The former Helen Wills is the undisputed queen of tennis. There can be no gainsaying that fact. And the rest of the women stars are but mere pretenders.

They rank so far beneath the great champion that the best they can be said for them is that they are ladies in waiting, ladies waiting for the queen to educate her throne.

It wouldn't be surprising to see Mrs. Whittingstall land the No. 3 world ranking behind Queen Helen and Fraulein Aussem, of Germany, ahead of Helen Jacobs and Betty Nuthall, and Betty's poor show on here may even cost her her place ahead of Phyllis Mudford, the little girl with the dynamite forehand who looked a lot better against the great Moody than Miss Nuthall did.

Two Injured in Race Spill at Marshfield

Retzlaff-Sekyra Clash Tonight

New York, Aug. 27 (INS)—Chet Retzlaff, Duluth heavyweight, and Joe Sekyra, Dayton, will clash here tonight in their postponed ten-round bout. The battle was put over from Tuesday because of threatening weather.

Rockne's Son May Play for Army Against Notre Dame

The sweetest story ever told about sports is the one that is going the rounds about the United States Military Academy at West Point, and the children of the late Knute Rockne.

If it works out, the football world may one day thrill to the spectacle of a Rockne tearing about the gridirons for the honor and glory of the Corps of Cadets.

High Army officials have apprised Mrs. Rockne that West Point is eager to educate one of her boys. Rockne's Notre Dame teams were Army's greatest rivals, but the bitterness of the field ended with the final whistles. Army athletic officials idolized the Notre Dame coach. He was their most friendly enemy.

Anyhow, it's a pretty gesture, eh, wot?

BIG TROPHY FOR 62½-MILE RACE

French bike fans will be cheering for Al Letournier Saturday night when the little Frenchman rides in the Classic Cycling Derby at the Revere track. The race, 100 kilometres, is the longest of the year.

With Letournier on the starting line when Doc Kendall fires the starting gun will be Freddy Spencer, Gerard DeRaes, Franco Georgetti, Charley Jaezar, Franz Duerberg and Jimmy Walthour.

On past records Spencer, Duelberg and Jaezar should have it out. Cecil Walker, the American sprint champion, faces two others in a special race—two heat one-mile heats in three. He fines a 1 to Charles Ritter, a big star last year, and Joe DeVito, who finished on the loser track.

Among the pace makers in Art Jessup, a former star with the Providence hockey team. This is his first year at pace making, but he has developed so fast that the fans consider a race half won if they draw him.

Sun Beau to Run in Lincoln Handicap

Chicago, Aug. 27. (AP)—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's sudden decision to send Sun Beau, the champion money-winning horse, after the $25,000 added Lincoln Handicap at Lincoln Fields Saturday was good news to Chicago racing fans—and bad news to owners of other eligibles for the fat purse.

It had been expected that 15 thoroughbreds would go to the post, but the decision to start the stout-hearted son of Sun Briar-Beautiful Lady may bring withdrawals and reduce the field to ten or less.

Mackmen Downed

St. Louis, Aug. 27—Two of Connie Mack's best hurlers failed to stop the scrappy Browns, and the A's lost, 9 to 5.

Dempsey to Box for Garden in December

New York, Aug. 27 (INS)—Jack Dempsey's exhibitions in the West are for the purpose of fitting him for a comeback, it was revealed today.

Dempsey said so in a telephone conversation with Tex Rickard, matchmaker of the Garden. The ex-hero sought comparison figures so he could shape up Dempsey. And while he was at it, to show in the Garden ring with any opponent Max Schmeling.

The Garden wanted Dempsey for an appearance the next month. For such a date, the latter part of November, Dempsey would be in shape, engagements aside. But engagements aside he was in no condition himself.

McAdoo and President Wilson F. Carey exerted a little high pressure that Dempsey a hamstringing four had had one or two lires behind it, forced him into a showdown by proposing an outdoor match here late in September.

Then offered him his choice of Polo Grounds or Yankee Stadium. Dempsey chose the latter. Rickard accepted.

"I'm not ready yet, but I will be. I promise you I'll go for Madison Square Garden indoors some time about Dec. 1, and I won't have to pick an opponent. You can do that.

"I'm really serious, but I'm not fighting bootblacks until I'm in top-notch condition. I figure I'll fight myself into shape, and gradually take on tougher fellows. By Dec. 1, I'll be ready for anyone. You can positively count on me for a Garden shot this winter."

Dempsey Toys With Three Opponents on the Coast

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 27 (INS)—Before an audience of 10,000 fight fans, Jack Dempsey hurled himself upon three heavyweights here last night and for one hour-and-a-half pummeled another into a trance, and took a lot of punishment from the third.

Dempsey looked like the champion of old as he weaved and bobbed and feinted and slugged, unleashing a furious attack that howled the Seattle boxer off his feet. Jack caught him as he started to go down and played with the fighter for two minutes, allowing the game but distressed Tingley to

Dempsey Is Anxious to Fight Jack Dempsey

Kansas City, Aug. 27 (AP)—Jack Dempsey's resumption of pugilistic activity has aroused the fighting fever anew in Luis Angel Firpo, who figured in the sensational heavyweight championship with Dempsey in 1923 at the Polo Grounds.

Firpo, now weighing 260, reports he has done some roadwork and adds "I will be in condition if Dempsey wants a return match."

By RINGSIDE

Eddie Mack's Argonne Club will install Stanley Poreda favorite, in the race for the heavyweight championship of the world at the Arena tonight. Poreda will then start tossing punches at Babe Hunt, the Big Gusher from Oklahoma in a 10-round skirmish.

The young men who make their living by tossing each other around the ring have been coming along fast and Poreda is one of those who will cause Frank Fitzsimmons to manage to stop on the top of his perch.

Poreda is one of the best of the younger crop of heavyweights that have come up since Jack Renault and Steve Hamas left the scene. He's a fighting fool who never punches more than with both hands.

Walter Cobb is supposed to be going places in the heavyweight line up to the time he collided with Poreda. The latter bumped Walter around with right hand punches and then finally lugged Cobb to a corner and went to his chewing again. Then came Walter a second but he didn't appear to have any of the vengeful Poreda as a sparring partner when he left the ring.

RITCHIE SHOOTS A 72

FAVORED TO WIN OPEN AT WOODLAND

By BILL GRIMES

Due to the heavy rain this morning, Don Ritchie's 72 looks good to win the two day Woodland Golf Club open.

Ritchie, who is a junior from Fall River, played yesterday afternoon under ideal conditions. He was 35 to the turn and came back in 37 for a 72, which gives him a four-stroke lead over his nearest opponent, Steve Sleeper, Jr., of Tee Country Club, who put together a pair of 38s for a 76.

Ritchie started off with a birdie at the first hole but he took a five at the third, where he was short in two. A deuce at the short fifth put Ritchie one under par again and he finished the round with four par holes for a 35.

His second slip was at the 11th, where he failed to catch the green and took a four and he went one over par by taking a six at the long 12th.

Ritchie's next slip was at the short 15th, where he failed to clip core enough to be down in one putt and after getting his par at the 16th and 17th, Ritchie dropped an eight footer for a birdie at the home hole.

Sleeper's Slip at the Seventh Ruins Chances

After playing the first six holes in par figures, Steve Sleeper of the Edgewater Club slipped afterward at the seventh and ninth holes to be out in 38.

Then he started his inward round with three pars but went one over on each of the next three holes, after going to the three consecutive pars for a 38.

In Class C, Jack Donahue, Weaver, and C. H. Knight, Needham, were the pacemakers, with net 79s, the Needham players having a one stroke advantage in the gross score.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON

Be careful that you do not turn your left shoulder up and out as you make your back swing. The left arm often pushes directly out and the elbow shoving directly out instead of ball, which is bad form. This not only ruins your left forearm to roll at some point, but it promotes the tendency to make the left shoulder lift so that it gets directly in the way of your seeing the ball. The illustration shows the error thus produced. The club then turns rather downward instead of going on up and around, and gets into an impossible position for swinging forward, and into the ball. You lift your head from this position, it being necessary to do so in order to see the ball. All this is caused by your left elbow shoving out at the start back. Move this elbow directly across your stomach, which is the natural, easy way. All good points in the golf swing you find with experience to be the natural things to do

HAIL, THE CADDY KING

Golfers will hail the caddy king, Peter Bukin of Brockton Country Club, when he teams with Stan Neptune against Harold McGrail and Tommy Quinn a week from Sunday at the South Shore Golf Club. Caddies usually just lug the bags. But they'll be kings for a day on the South Shore links.

Twixt Tee and Cup

After turning in a 139 for 36 holes during the exhibition against Billy Burke and George Von Elm at Woodland, Francis Ouimet knocked the props from under Bill Blaney's Brae Burn record yesterday by scoring a 67, which is eight under par for that championship course.

Francis bagged no less than nine birdies during his round at Brae Burn, which he played with M. F. Heath, Sr. Milton, and Mel Jr. He was out in 31 and back in 36, using only 25 putts for the entire round.

As George Von Elm remarked after the Woodland match: Francis is hitting his shots better than he has in years and he is the player to beat next week at Beverly Hills, Chicago, for the National amateur title.

Although Fred Wright, the state champion and Wilfred Crossley, the ex-junior champion are on their way to Chicago for the nationals this is gateway day for Francis Ouimet, Bill Donnelly, the Junior champion from Ridgewood, the New England champion, and Bill Blaney leave today for the Windy City.

All of the talk concerning the lack of form displayed by Bob Burke is hooey. He may not be a stylist, but he gets the results. That is the chief objective. Incidentally, how that young man can chip!

Marcus Knowlton, who never misses a day of golf, is born de combat, due to a broken blood vessel in his left leg. Marcus has been on the side lines for a couple of weeks and is likely to remain out of action for at least another fortnight.

Roger Farwell, the master of ceremonies at Sandy Burr, predicts that the record established last year will be broken before Saturday. The "Flea" is one of the most popular courses with the open tournament enthusiasts and is in fine condition.

Billy Burke and George Von Elm, who are playing an 18-hole exhibition at the Country Club of Springfield today, are scheduled to battle Jim Hendry, the veteran professional, and Harold Nute, one of the ranking amateurs of New Hampshire, in a 36-hole tilt tomorrow at the Manchester Country Club.

Evidently Mrs. S. M. Felton did a fine job with the handicaps for the women's four-ball invitation at Essex, for two of the matches finished on the home green, one went to the 19th and the other wound up at the 17th hole.

Pittsburgh Hoboes Play Dorchester

The Pittsburgh Hoboes will be seen at the Dorchester Town Field, against the Dorchester Twi nine tomorrow night. On their last two appearances here in Boston, the hoboes, of the road wog each time, defeating Forest Hills' A. A. and St. Thomas A. C.

Either Vanderbilt or Wanamaker will twirl for the Pittsburgh nine with Morgan receiving. Chamberlain or King will throw for Dorchester with Fleming behind the bat.

Keep Away From Water

By M. T. McSWEENEY

A reader, seeing a story in the papers that Mrs. Myrtle Huddleston, noted endurance swimmer, remained in the icy waters of Lake Tahoe, California, for 23 hours, until she covered the fifteen-mile width of the lake, asks us if we know any reason why anyone should remain in water that long.

But on second thought, which always follows our first thought on controversial matters, we hazard several opinions. We can understand persons staying in the water indefinitely under the following circumstances:

1—In escaping from Deer Island.

3—After a week-end party.

4—If you happen to be Andrew Volstead.

In all other cases, we are constrained to warn our readers against staying under water too long.

Water, you know, was made primarily for fish.

CADDIES IN EXHIBITION AT S.S.C.C.

Two years ago, Pres. James H. Kimball of the South Shore Country Club, established a precedent by staging an 18-hole exhibition between two caddies, Stanley Neptune and Tommie Quinn.

One week from Sunday, Peter Bukin, the caddy champion from the Brockton Country Club and Stanley Neptune of South Shore, will engage in a four ball exhibition against Harold McGrail the former caddy titleholder, and Tommie Quinn at the South Shore Country Club.

During the recent caddy championship at The Country Club, Buk n McGrail, Neptune and Quinn proved to be the best in the field, Bukin won with a 36-hole total of 159, and McGrail and Neptune played off for second place, which was taken by the former, while Quinn, who finished with 159, was the victim of an uncalled for rule, which resulted in his disqualification.

The South Shore Country Club has arranged to give prizes for the winner of the four ball match and the best individual scorer, as well as the runner-up, will also be suitably rewarded.

Quartet Best in Ranks of Caddies

Bukin McGrail, Neptune and Quinn are the class of the caddy ranks. A year ago at Woodland, during the caddy championship, which was eventually captured by McGrail, Bukin led the field at the end of the morning round with a 76, but he blew wide open in the afternoon requiring 84 blows for his second round.

McGrail is not only the longest hitter among the caddies but he is one of the best in the state. He is under the tutelage of Johnny Keefe of The Country Club, and his game is showing a marked improvement. Neptune reached into the front ranks of the caddy world two years ago at The Country Club, when he threatened to take the title back in South Shore.

Tommie Quinn is regarded as one of the most promising caddies developed in years despite the fact that he has passed on to championships. Tommie needed a four for a 40 going out and then missed qualifying by a stroke. He was third in the caddy championship in 1929, although he was only 14 years of age.

The next season he qualified for the Juniors at Belmont Spring, as a result of his being able to play the last 10 holes in even 4s. He now enjoying their vacations They were treated in the second annual affair by Wilfred Crossley, who went Louis H. Sawyer and Edward K. through and won the title, 3 and 1. Nash.

Need for Local Ordinance Seen

By N. F. T.

Not long ago there was a proposed city ordinance prepared with a view to curbing use of radio receivers between certain hours. If an always dependable memory is still functuning, this bit of contemplated law would have made it compulsory to silence our dynamic squawkers between midnight and 7 a. m.

Someone, Mayor Curley didn't quite grasp the idea and shipped said proposal right back to the puissance city father re-questing, in the introduction, a law never to be heard of any further effort to place restrictions on ear ruppers of Boston.

A good many good people seem to think, however, that something, of the sort is necessary. One day's mail is quite sufficient to evidence the existence of much concern, if not morbid distress over radio annoyers hereabouts.

CHAMPION WANTED:

More than a few of the spirited communications in hand today plead for an expression in public print. Some correspondents feel the situation is getting now better fast and suggest that your Uncle N. F. T. take the initiative in launching a campaign for relief. Whether it is people wage an vigorously when they want something—or don't want it.

Well, if conditions are really that serious, then perhaps we haven't been paying the strictest attention. A limited few loudspeakers have been heard along about 7 a. m. on occasional mornings out our way. These have not as yet become objectionable, although there remains the chance that they might. Until then, no immediate need for an ordinance seems warranted. Unless some of the opponents of early morning and late night radio are spoofing in their threats to get official action against it wouldn't be at all surprising to learn that City Council shall once more be called on to wrestle with the problem of pleasing this offended multitude by drafting another ordinance.

DIVIDED THEY STAND

The love of music is much a matter of individual likes and dislikes, that any measure tending to qualify prohibitions, even in the slightest degree, would no doubt bring an avalanche of expressing good will letters urging us to tune in at will, regardless of the hour.

* * *

On the other hand as the clergyman said to a flustered bridegroom fastening the circular symbol of matrimony, should any dissention continue on the part of those who detest being disturbed at unseemly hours, we can expect the controversy to end quickly.

Port of Boston

Application of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for a permit to construct a pier at Bourne Neck, Buzzard's Bay, will be considered at a public hearing to be held in the Town Hall, Bourne, Mass. Notice was given to members and parties interested by the Marine Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, today.

Navigation interests and officials of the cities and towns whose interests are affected are invited to attend by Col. Sherwood A. Cheney, United States War Department engineer, who called the hearing. Plans already submitted show two types of pier construction under consideration, one covering the construction of a pier with a creosoted piling and timber and the other solid fill.

BACK TO HUB

Bringing 137 Boston passengers, mostly vacationists, the steamship Newfoundland of the Furness Line from Liverpool, England, via Halifax, St. Johns, Nfld., is due today. She docks at Pier 40 and 41 Hoosac Tunnel Docks.

BADLY DAMAGED—Damage estimated at $90,000 was caused when Norwegian steamer Eagle went hard aground on rocks where a dense fog off Summerside, Prince Edward Island. She arrived here with a battery of steam pumps in operation to keep her holds from filling with water. Plates were bent and twisted it was found when a survey was made by Ludwig Moldig of New York at the Simpson Plant of the Halifax Shipbuilding Corp. Chartered by the International Paper Co. she was on her way from Chatham, N. B., to Portland, Me., with a cargo of wood pulp. She was floated by Dominion Government and Canada government steamer Lord Strathcona.

FUMIGATE SHIP—Held at quarantine for fumigation, the steamship Makalla of the Ricciclefank Line is now at her dock discharging 100 tons of jummies, tea, shellac and hides for local shippers She came here from Calcutta and Colombo. Capt. J. W. Mc Knight reported an uneventful passage.

MOORMACK BUSY—With their combined cargoes to Boston larger than usual for steamers of the Moormack Line arrived here. They were the Commercial-Quaker from Mobile and Panama City, she had 809 tons of paper. The Commercial-Orleanian also arrived from New Orleans, Mobile and Tampa and carried 809 tons of general cargo.

EARLY LOSSES ARE CANCELLED IN WALL ST.

New York, Aug. 27—Bears again seemed to have squeezed the last drop of selling out of the stock market in Wall st. today, but with seasonal recovery in business still obscure, bulls showed little eagerness to try for a turn.

Merchandising issues and a few industrials, however, were pushed up moderately after midday.

BOND PRESSURE LIGHTER

The most encouraging aspect of the financial markets was a lightening of pressure against bonds, although in this market, as in stocks, enough elements of uncertainty remained to hold constructive efforts in check.

The share market was somewhat heavy during the earlier hours of trading, with rallies again under some pressure, but several prominent issues suffered sharp setbacks, and losses were reduced or cancelled.

Morning losses of a point or two in American Can, American Telephone, Case and Allied Chemical were soon well in hand, and retagged only a fraction, then recovered. Kreuger and Toll again registered a new low.

Merchandising shares were helped by announcement of a dividend basis of five for Federal Department Stores, which gained about a point, as did Woolworth, Best and Macy. DuPont, Allied Chemical, Radio and Radio preferred B also pushed up moderately.

Fixed trust quarters were keenly interest in the news of the visit to the White House of officers of the Chase National Bank, the Guaranty Trust Co. and the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co., three of the leading commercial banks of Wall Street.

Some of the observers were inclined to think this visit with reports from Berlin that Chancellor Bruening looked for decisive developments in connection with reparations before Congress convenes in Washington, but banking opinion on the whole remains rather dubious over early developments in the reparations situation, despite the Wiggin report.

CHEER OVER ENGLAND

Wall Street has been cautious about jumping at favorable conclusions over the developments abroad, after the short life of the enforced upturn in stocks with which the one-year debt moratorium was greeted.

Some leading bankers believe the new government in England, committed to drastic economies, is one of the most encouraging developments in international finance of the year. Securities markets, particularly the London market, however, have been inclined to wait for the publication of the new government's taxation plans.

Reports in Berlin are generally encouraging, including the plan to resume trading on the Boerse next week. Some observers in this city look will be regarded in Wall Street as clouded until some more lasting arrangement is made in the standstill agreement on foreign credits can be arranged.

The oil stocks continued to hold about stationary. Standards of New Jersey and California failed to respond to the official announcement of important progress in the merger negotiations. There is a distinct tendency in stock market circles to await the actual working on the Texas conservation plan before drawing conclusions as to a turn in the petroleum industry.

Transamerica stock rose fractionally on a large turnover in the early trading in response to reports of a plan to distribute part of its holdings as a sort of stock dividend, but fell stock lost most of its rise, as the report was discouraged in official quarters.

STORE MERGER IS APPROVED

New York, Aug. 27 (AP)—Stockholders of Safeway Stores, Inc., have approved the plan of directors to acquire MacMarr Stores, Inc., through the issuance of a total of 602 shares of Safeway common stock and, approximately, 58,567 shares of Safeway 7 per cent preferred.

Under the plan Safeway will issue seven-tenths of a share of its 7 per cent preferred and three-tenths of a share of its common for each share of MacMarr preferred stock, and two-elevenths of a share of Safeway common for each share of MacMarr common.

It is also proposed that holders of warrants calling for the purchase of approximately 80,623 shares of MacMarr common stock at $30 a share shall be entitled to two-elevenths of a share of Safeway common for each share of MacMarr common called for by the warrants.

Hears the A & P Will Secure Coffee

New York, Aug. 27—Wall st. heard a report today that the Great Atlantic & Pacific will take over $1,000,000 bags of coffee held by Grain Stabilization Corp. in the coffee-wheat trade with Brazil. A & P officials refuse to discuss the subject. Coffee trade in general credits the report, and several merchants said distribution was decided before consummation of the deal.

Profit of General Realty Is $913,354

And they aren't built right for beach pajamas, but they go right on wearing them.

PLAINT OF PESSIMISM

I think that I shall never view
A gal that's lovely through and through.
For when her mouth is like a rose
She has a most annoying nose,
Or if her nose be cute, alack,
Her hips seem slightly out of whack,
And when she boasts two perfect limbs
She also flaunts two goggled glims—
Since perfect frails seem hard to find
Let's all give thanks that love is blind!

EXTRA SAILINGS FOR PILGRIMS

For the accommodation of New England Catholics who plan to attend the Eucharistic Congress next June in Dublin, Ireland, the Cunard Line has arranged extra sailings to and from Boston.

The official diocesan pilgrimage, under the personal leadership of Cardinal O'Connell, will leave here on June 12 and this group is expected to number 1000. The Cunarder Lancastria has been chartered for the voyage.

Sailings already scheduled include the Samaria, leaving here May 25, Transylvania sailing June 1, Carmania a week later, and the Laconia and Cameronia on June 22. Returning, the Transylvania leaves Ireland July 2, followed by the Scythia July 9, Franconia July 16, and Laconia July 23, each touching here on the way to New York.

PRESS RETIRED BY AMERICAN

The last old pal of Jim the Machinist went to its doom today—after printing approximately 700,000,000 copies of the Boston Evening American.

It was the last of the old style presses and for 26 years, ever since the start of the Boston Evening American, it had labored prodigiously in turning out copies of this newspaper.

And as Jim Walsh, the machinist who took care of the press, remembers it, the old Hoe press was about 15 years old when the American purchased it back in 1904.

It was the last of the old 24-unit presses, with a capacity of 24,000 copies an hour, the American having been torn down and disposed of the others and having substituted the most modern 16-unit super-production presses with a capacity of 60,000 each an hour.

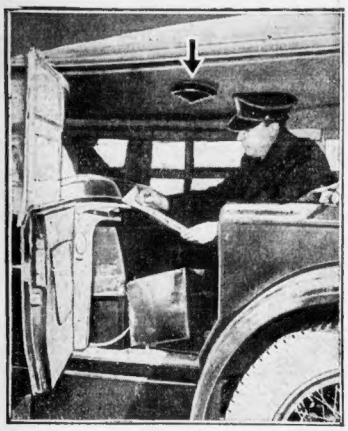
Radio for Police Cars

New York to Get This Modern Equipment for the War on Crime—Why Not Boston?



Washington, D. C., patrolman taking down broadcast description of criminals wanted at headquarters. Arrow points to loud speaker installed on car roof.

To prevent death parades like that last Friday, the New York Board of Estimate at Police Commissioner Mulrooney's request has appropriated $127,000 to equip cruising police cars with radio receivers.

These sets will be equivalent to an increase of the police by several hundred patrolmen, because they will enable the department to hurl squads of officers to the scene of the shootings before the gunmen can get far away.

If police cars had been tipped off by radio, the twelve-mile pursuit of the death-taxi in last Friday's battle would have been unnecessary.

The bluecoats could have got their men a few minutes after Patrolman Webb was murdered—and some of the innocent pedestrians and motorists who were killed by stray shots would now be alive.

Bulletins can be flashed instantly to the cars as soon as headquarters or the nearest transmitting station hears of the crime. Departments that have tried the plan are enthusiastic at the results.

It is possible to "scramble" the messages so that criminals cannot listen in.

Arrests have been speeded up, and the crime rate has dropped, in most of the cities where the system is in use.

This is one of the most effective weapons available.

No time should be lost in adopting this modern means of fighting crime and criminals.

Just Folks

Twenty-Five Years

"Throughout the years that we've been wed
With all their stormy weather,
And all their fits of doubt and dread,
Somehow we've kept together.
Somehow, my dear, in spite of care
And hurts that came to smart us,
And little wrongs which seemed unfair
We've never let them part us.

"Oh, we've had days of storm and stress,
And we've had griefs that tried us;
But sorrow never made love less,
Or threatened to divide us.
Somehow in spite of all I've done
And said when irritated,
We've managed to keep going on
Like sweethearts, newly mated.

"We've had our share of ups and downs,
And tasks to irk and fret us,
Our foolishness brought frequent frowns,
Our blunders grave upset us,
But since the tie that binds oft snaps
For others just as plucky,
And we've escaped disaster, p'raps
My dear, we've just been lucky."

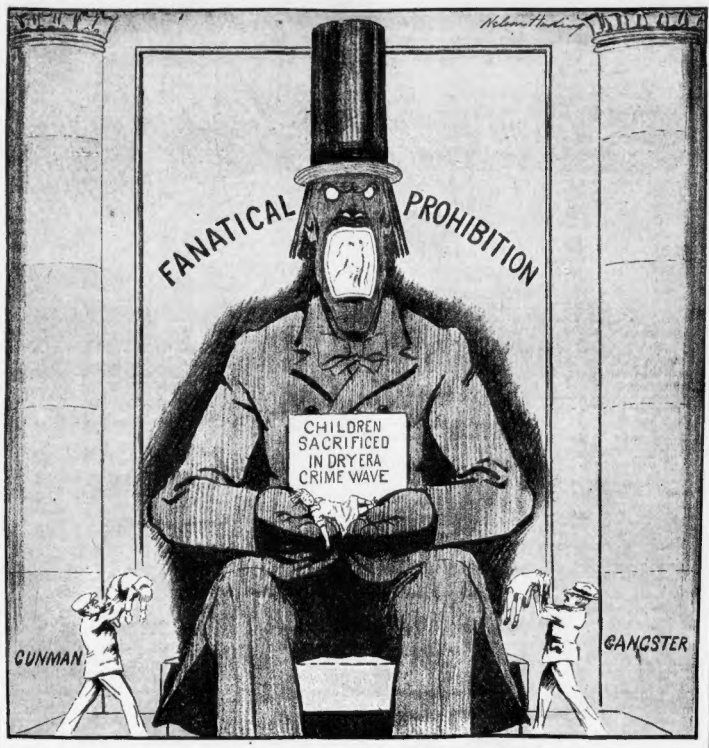
Modern Moloch

By NELSON HARDING



The Bible tells of a cruel god called Moloch, worshipped by the Carthaginians. Moloch was represented by a hideous idol, made of iron. When heated by interior fires, children were placed in its extended arms as a sacrifice.

And today babies are sacrificed in a reign of terror produced by Prohibition, whose high priests, the gunman and the gangster, place the piteous offerings on the altar of Fanaticism.

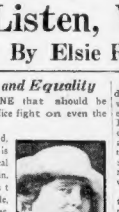
Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Chivalry and Equality

HERE'S ONE that should be good for an office fight on even the dullest day.

My friend Evelyn Adair, is a successful real estate woman. Thirty-eight years old, single, tall, slender, handsome in a dark, vivid way. A fine person, Evelyn—friendly, generous, good natured. Men like her. She likes men. Could have married a dozen times if she had wished. But there's a queer, secret prejudice that holds her back.



Elsie Robinson

Evelyn was born in Maryland. Long enough ago so that the tradition of southern chivalry was still in full swing. In spite of her business career, she's still a romantic at heart . . . still yearning for that sort of deference from men which her grandmother received. She'd deny it, of course. She might even grow a bit indignant and protest that she only wants "common politeness." But judge for yourself—

Evelyn has no use for a man who doesn't take off his hat in an elevator when there is a woman passenger. Or for a man who doesn't ask her permission to smoke (even though Evelyn herself smokes!) Or for a man who doesn't rise and open the door when she is leaving a room. Or for a man who would borrow money from a woman or allow her to go "dutch treat" on a luncheon check.

Of course she meets such men daily—scores of them. Does business with them constantly and is generally considered "a good fellow." Even when men outsmart her in a deal . . . or openly clash with her and criticize her . . . she keeps her temper, is cool and courteous. But, secretly, she is contemptuous and resentful. She doesn't believe that a woman "should be treated like that."

Strange? Yet if you could search the hearts of other successful business women you would find that most of them agree with her. Smart women—capable as any man. Yet nine times out of ten there's that "feminine streak" in them. They all believe that "a woman is entitled to certain consideration."

IS SHE? IF A WOMAN HAS EQUALITY SHOULD SHE EXPECT CHIVALRY?

Why is chivalry? Was it started because women were really "better than men," purer, gentler, or finer clay? Was that why men decided to raise their hats to Woman, rise when she entered a room, protect her from unpleasant conflict and criticism?

If so, what becomes of all these pretty theories when Woman leaps down from her pedestal and barges in on the masculine game? Should she still be treated as a Plaster Saint if she's acting like a Regular Egg?

Personally, I've always had a hunch that chivalry was just a lot of polite palaver, and pedestals merely parking stations whereby meddlesome femmes could be kept out of the way while the boys get by with murder. And, as a modern business woman, I'd rather give-and-take than a ton of chivalry. But well I know my sex will not agree with me. So YOU tell 'em—

Should working ladies be treated Extra and Special in 1931?

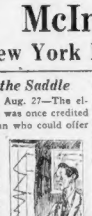
New York Day by Day

Youth in the Saddle

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—The elder J. P. Morgan was once credited as saying any man who could offer fairly convincing proof that he was worth a million dollars to a reputable firm would have no trouble collecting. From reliable sources I learn of an incident illustrating the point.



The story concerns an advertising agency that made an extremely tempting offer to the alert advertising manager of a big New York department store. He was out of college only a few years but had shown surprising results. The store's president, hearing of the offer, sent for the young man.

He inquired: "What is your financial goal?" The reply was: "One million dollars." Scarcely batting an eye, the president said: "We will give it to you." In view of the unusual circumstances the advertising agency, although the contract was signed, released him.

Older and wiser heads in big business are declaring that at the moment, more than in any other period of industrial history, young men face golden opportunities. Charles M. Schwab jumped from $50,000 to $250,000 salary in one year. It was indeed a conspicuous achievement.

Yet even in the depression there were rousing reports of the doer. A chain store organization was slumping frightfully in receipts. An obscure employe in the counting department wrote a letter to the chairman of the board which interested him and fellow directors.

The young man asked no salary to put through his idea. He sought instead one-half of one per cent of the net profits the first year and after that a salary of $100,000 annually. He made $67,000 the first year and was voluntarily given $100,000.

Those who know say business in stagnation is turning eagerly to fresh, young blood. Where gray heads sat at executive desks two years ago, there are today alert youths with hair en brosse. A great banker recently said: "When we ride out of this present chaos, youth will be in the saddle."

I worked on a middle west newspaper where the managing editor at 29 was the oldest executive. Reporters wore college caps and peg top trousers and the sporting editor had to place a box on his chair to reach the typewriter. The copy boy was Paul Dunbar, who later gained fame as a Negro poet. It would be pleasant to report amazing success but the truth is our journalistic efforts were pretty much a mess. The climax came when the opposition paper scooped us on the mysterious murder of the janitor in our own building.

* * *

Incidentally, a spin of life's wheel pocketed one of that old staff in the entrance of a Coney Island concession where with a megaphone and a pair of leather lungs he barked to passerby of wonders within. Spotting me among the throngs along Surf avenue one afternoon he boomed: "How's this for local boy making good in the big city?"

* * *

Driving through the Bowery these late evenings offers a depressing spectacle. Waiting for the rescue missions to open for the cup of coffee and back room flop, the derelicts huddle together like sheep in a storm. What heightens the melancholy is the utter silence. One may watch them for a half hour—as I did—and not a lip moved. They seem completely stunned.

The Bowery sidewalk seems the last stand of the organ grinder and "da monk." The grinder I saw had reached a seedy ness seldom achieved and his wheezy organ struck only an occasional, meaningless note. Even the moth-eaten monkey turned lazy somersaults with despairing hopelessness.

* * *

George Jessel, Lou Holz and Frisco smoke especially made Graf-Zeppelin sized cigars—at least I have always believed they were cigars until I sat to the windward of one of the trio in a cafe last evening. Even today, walking along, I find myself standing suddenly still and swaying.

Prohibition Is Vicious; It Enslaves Man's Soul

By BRAND WHITLOCK

(Copyright, 1931, by Brand Whitlock.)

With all their mystical fervor and their acquired mastery of political technique, its proponents, alone and unaided, could never have accomplished their ends if they had not received aid from a more practical and cynical source.

There was a time when vested interests felt themselves bound together in a sort of comity, and so long as this was the case the liquor interests were secure in the possession of their property and their rights acquired under the law.

Brewers and distillers might feel that their property was as sacred as that of other manufacturers. They were as good as anybody, and if they did not have quite so high a rank among the rich and grand as they would have in England, for instance:

Many a peer of England brews
Liquor livelier than the Muse—

At any rate their rich friends had always stood by them, and effectively opposed any reform that might injure them. But, just as the merchants in Macochee, Ohio, when they got it into their heads that the money going over the bar of the saloon might just as well be coming in over the counters of their shops, ceased to oppose prohibition and voted the town dry, so these old friends and supporters when they conceived that they might find something to their advantage in prohibition, threw over the brewers and the distillers, came out for reform, and joined in the hue and cry after the saloonkeeper.

Practical and material considerations came to the aid of moral and spiritual considerations.

Prohibition would be good for business. A new thesis was advanced; not only was it right, but there was money in it.

The base materialist could be won by appealing to his avarice; the lofty idealist by rousing that moral purpose which inspired the slightest action of his life.

The debate was conveniently shifted, and an entirely new stock of arguments in favor of prohibition was added to the old arsenal.

Instead of justifying the reform on moral grounds, it was now to be more convincingly justified on economic grounds.

This was the new age of industrial efficiency and mass production. More work, that is, more profits, could be got out of working men if they were sober; they could be speeded up to new exertions and be more completely Taylorized.

To hear people talk one would have thought that in the days before prohibition all the working men in the land were nothing but a lot of lazy toss-pots who invariably got drunk on Saturday night, and after they had spent all of their wages at the saloon, went home and beat their wives, and that the only way to cure them of these distressing habits was to take away their beer.

Under the new regime they would go straight home from the shop, triumphantly pour their wages into the wives' aprons and turn up promptly on Monday morning, bright and smiling and keen for work.

Instead of spending their money in the saloon they would buy motor cars and gramaphones, and these agencies of moral uplift would keep them out of mischief and maintain a higher standard of living on the instalment plan.

Babbit suddenly went in for altruism; he had a new vision; he developed a new jargon, and a new cant. It was revealed to him that he was not in business for profit but for service; he was going to uplift humanity by advertising, and scientific salesmanship, and, exhilarated by the new evangel, he would go forth into all the world and sell the world and sell the gospel to every creature.

We were to have mass production of everything—clothing, food, ideas, opinions, religion and morals. Optimism was to be universal and compulsory, stimulated by ginger ale and grape juice. Life was to be simplified, made easy; the degrading slavery of household drudgery was to be abolished; everybody was to feed out of tin cans, and the women were to be free to devote themselves to higher things.

We were to breed a new and glorious race—fat, pink and efficient, nourished on certified milk and chocolate tablets, with calories and vitamines scientifically rationed.

Poverty was to be abolished and prosperity assured by Couéism; everybody, on rising each morning, was to repeat the magic formula: "Every day in every way I am getting richer and richer."

The gratifying discovery was made that all the old cramping laws of economics were ridiculous and out of date; it was not the demand that created the supply, but the supply that created the demand; thrift was an old-fashioned and silly notion, you must spend your money before you got it, spending and extravagance were the real bases of prosperity.

One heard this philosophy noisily expounded at the dinner table after the five initiatory cocktails had been ingurgitated, and if on seeing these enthusiastic prohibitionists so convivial, one were tactless enough to betray any surprise at the incongruity one was assured, with an air of great sophistication, that of course the law was "never intended for people of our class."

No one, I suppose, would deny that, after making allowance for the fantastic exaggerations about the habits of the working man, he would be better off if he let whiskey alone. But, even so, this is hardly a sufficient reason for establishing feudalism and reducing him to the status of a serf.

If the economic advantage of the employer were the only consideration involved, then chattel slavery might as logically be justified.

We are living in an age of machines and we have been more thoroughly mechanized than any other people.

The trend in the years immediately preceding the Great War had been in the direction of larger liberty.

But the idea of a nation of standardized mediocrity in which individualism and personality, charm and color, art and romance are all sacrificed to a drab utilitarianism can have no attraction for anyone with a spark of imagination.

Anyone who had caught the vision, however vague and dim, of the kind of life that liberty would make possible for the individual, would not be very much impressed by the specious argument of the economic advantages of prohibition; he would be no more impressed by that than by the argument of the vets that prohibition was a mistake because it deprived the government of the large revenue it had once derived from the taxation levied on spirits.

IF PROHIBITION COULD DO ABOUT ALL THE EVILS DUE TO THE ABUSE OF ALCOHOLIC STIMULANTS, IT WOULD BE WORTH ALL IT MIGHT COST IN MONEY.

There is only one price too big to pay for that AND THAT IS THE LOSS OF LIBERTY.

The old-fashioned American in his incorrigible romanticism had always cherished the illusion that the mission of America was to establish self-government; the ideal was not a nation of fat slaves, but a nation of lean freemen.

After all, there might be some hope for freemen even if they were drunk, but there could be none for slaves, however sober.

But the alternative is hardly so narrow as all that, and because some men have not yet learned to control their appetites is no reason for depriving all men of their individual liberty.

For the important thing in a nation is the human being—the individual. Life is individual; liberty is individual; happiness is individual; and any code or any system that enslaves the individual is vicious because it is destructive of the soul of man.
